Pebble Beach construction project isn't Forest Course

By SCOTT BREARTON

THOSE INTENTLY watching for updates on the Pebble Beach Co.'s proposed 350-lot subdivision and new golf course should realize their eyes are deceiving them: the bulldozing taking place in the Del Monte Forest is, in fact, the beginning of a much smaller subdivision approved by county planners last year.

Approval for a 20-lot subdivision — known as the Macomber Estates — was approved by the planning commission in early 1993, according to Monterey County planner Juliana Rebagliati Rose. The 79-acre parcel, owned by J. Lohr Properties, Inc., is located in the southeast portion of the Del Monte Forest between 17-Mile Drive and Del Ciervo Road. A final lot map was recorded early this year.

Rose said the bulldozing and grading currently underway are infrastructure improvements associated with the project's approval. Perhaps the most significant improvement is the ongoing realignment of Del Ciervo Road at 17-Mile Drive, which is expected to make the intersection safer.

The infrastructure improvements —

State project freezes delay Highway 1 improvements

By PAUL WOLF

ALTHOUGH THE Hatton Canyon Freeway has already been delayed this year, there is now good reason to believe its construction may be further off than anticipated.

In light of developments at the state level this week, even the interim "operational improvements," designed to accommodate the peninsula traffic until the freeway is built, may be postponed.

Grim funding realities were presented on Wednesday before the Transportation Agency for the Monterey County (TAMC).

"The state is stopping nearly all projects," said TAMC Chairman Dave Potter. "Everything is on hold."

Two California Department of Transportation (Caltrans) representatives reported to the 17-member TAMC that stalled legislation and voter refusal to approve state bonds for repairs and retrofits after the Northridge earth quake have frozen more than $1 billion in new projects.

This year, the freeway has already been bumped from the 1994 State Transportation Improvement Program (STIP) to the 1996 list. "We now may be look-

BEN HELLER, a retired physician whose field of interest extended to the ills of society as a whole, died at Community Hospital of Monterey Peninsula on Friday. He was 78.

Heller, a recognized warrior for human rights on many fronts, died following "a massive heart attack," according to survivors.

A Carmel resident the past 20 years, the Canadian-born Heller took up major causes spanning a period of decades. He fought for civil rights and school integration in the cauldron of a changing South, protested the Vietnam War after initially supporting it, and took a leadership role in opposing the death penalty on behalf of Amnesty Interna-

Q & A

'Our library is always going to serve the community outside the city limits.'

PELIKAN... ON THE LIBRARY

MARGARET PELIKAN, a 16-year veteran of the Harrison Memorial Library, became its director in 1988.

She would soon find herself at the head of a shrinking department. With a 30-percent reduction in staff over three years, the library suffered some of the biggest cutbacks in the city during the recession.

With library funding now apparently stabilized, the program overall continues to thrive, but many locals will miss the Sunday hours and a number of programs.

Pelikan, a Carmel Woods resident, reveals how running a library consists of more than managing people and resources. It requires an understanding of the role of a free library in a small community.

Pine Cone: It is said that Carmel is a "literate community." Define what we mean by this.

Pelikan: When we look at demographics, Carmel has one of the highest education levels around.

But the statistic I really love is that 92 percent of the people who live inside the city limits have a library card and use it. In most communities,

Elmarie Dyke was key to Feast's success; she created popular Saturday pageant

In 1905, the Methodists and the Women's Civic Club of Pacific Grove organized a celebration for the close of the Chautauqua Assembly. The celebration centered around a story based on the Blue Willow legend, a folk tale of a princess, her arranged marriage and the poor man she loves.

A version of the same tale is found in the popular Blue Willow china pattern, which has been made in China, Japan, England and the United States since the early 19th century. The Chinese background of Pacific Grove's feast came from the large Chinese colony that existed at China Point (where Hopkins Marine Station now stands) in the early part of the century. The colony sent lighted boats to take part in the festival, a precursor of today's boat parade.

The name "Feast of Lanterns" is apparently taken from eastern feasts honoring the Gods, when lanterns were lighted to guide home the spirits of departed ancestors who would visit their relatives. In all feast of lanterns legends, lanterned boats have been used.

The Feast of Lanterns has always used the Pacific Grove Beach for its display of lanterns and fireworks. In the 1900s, the evening started with a lighted lantern parade from town to the beach. The festival was carried on until the federal government stopped "all celebrations that were not for patriotic endeavors" when America entered the war in Europe in 1917.

Between the two world wars, the feast was not held every year, but the celebrations included a parade dedicating a new La France fire engine in 1923, and the honor of being part of the dedication of Father Serra's sarcophagus and the Serra Pilgrimage Celebration in 1924.

In 1925, the Feast was called off because of lack of interest by merchants, and the city had to be content with July 4 fireworks at Lovers Point.

In the late 1930s, when good-natured jokesters said you could tell "Carmel-by-the-Sea, Monterey by the smell, and Pacific Grove, by God," the sardines were in their glory next door on what is now Cannery Row and the area's economy was improving.

The Feast of Lanterns was revived in 1935. In those days, it was connected with the Miss California pageant held in Santa Cruz.

The yearly festival was interrupted again by World War II and not held again until it was revived in 1958 by PG City Councilman Clyde F. Dyke. When he died in 1963, his wife, Elmarie Hurlbert Hyler Dyke, took the reins.

Mrs. Dyke, who came to be known affectionately as "Mrs. Pacific Grove," created the Saturday-evening pageant as it exists today. She wrote the Blue Willow-based script and expanded upon it over the years, incorporating such diverse elements as the early evening entertainment, the crowning of the queen, the pageant itself, the fireworks, the boat parade and a skindiver-propelled "sea serpent."

She also made the most of the preceding Feast of Lanterns Week. In 1967, the new Community Center at Junipero and 14th was dedicated as part of the feast; in 1974, dedication of the Elmarie H. Dyke Butterfly Trees Grove and the new police station were attended by Queen Topaz and the Royal Court.

After her death in 1981, the festival experienced several rocky years without her leadership.

In 1986, the festival was canceled altogether, but in 1987 enough money was raised to reinstate an abbreviated fireworks display, and since then Pacific Grove's Feast of Lanterns has continued smoothly, with the help of many talented volunteers and a queen and princesses chosen from high school students whose scholastic and extra-curricular activities make them worthy of the honor.

went to events, I had to worry about whether I knew what I was supposed to say. Now, I have to ask myself 'Is this princess here? If she gets asked a question, will she know the answer?'"

Lena takes the time to go over the Feast of Lanterns lore with her Court before each public appearance, saying "we get asked a lot of questions."

The public appearances, besides the Feast of Lanterns show on Saturday evening, include participation in parades, dinners and luncheons during the early part of the summer. Goodwill visits to rest homes and schools also are part of the responsibility.

The members of the Royal Court put in a full seven days of work during Feast of Lanterns week, when they are required to appear at all events and help the volunteer committee prepare food and provide entertainment and activities.

Future plans firmed up

Lena's plans after she graduates from high school are just as firm as her third-grade plans to become a princess. She plans to attend junior college and then a four-year university, with a double major in fire science and performing arts. Her career goal of becoming a firefighter will, she hopes, allow her to remain in the Monterey area.

"I don't want to go too far away," Lena says. "Firefighters usually work three days out of four during the season, and I want to volunteer as a drama teacher in the schools the other four days."

Lena says her summer as Queen Topaz is turning out to be "a lot of fun and a lot of hard work," but she is handling her responsibilities with grace, skill and sophistication.

Director relates library's role in 'literate community'

you'll find registered borrowers represent maybe 40 percent of the population.

As you may know, we have more patrons than just those who live in the city, which has about 4,000 people. Total card holders number somewhere between 13,000 and 16,000. This truly is a "reading community."

Pine Cone: Why do most of the patrons come from out of town?

Pelikan: Well, Carmel had a library way back in 1906, before there was the city. Then the city was incorporated in 1916. At the time, it was called the Carmel Free Library Association. For a dollar a year, you could borrow any of the 300 books — I love that: Three hundred books in the county.

So there is a long tradition of broad library service. Now it used to be that the City of Carmel was the population center of this area. There was always the library; everyone who lived inside the city limits always used the library. And there was no other library for the unincorporated areas built in the Carmel area.

That went along just fine until the 1940s and 1950s with the huge population boom. The library saw things shift, instead of most of our users being inside the city, most of our users came from outside.

For all the people who don't live in the city limits we get no direct government support, and that is a challenge. The analogy I like to use is this: I live within walking distance of the library, but it's still right outside the city limits.

If I didn't work for the city, it would never occur to me that I didn't live in the City of Carmel. When I travel and someone asks me where I live, I say Carmel. My son has come to "Storytime" here since he was two. I've always thought of this as "my library."

Pine Cone: So, technically, your property tax payments don't support the Carmel Library...

Pelikan: That's correct. It goes to the county library system. I'm not arguing with that. But when we look at what library people are using, it's the Carmel library.

Interview by Paul Wolf

So the real problem for us is that two-thirds of our users don't live in the city. Yet in their minds, they're paying a library tax.

And then on the other side, the philosophy is: Our library is always going to serve the community outside the city limits. We don't want to put up barriers. We don't want to discourage people from reading.

Pine Cone: Might not charging outsiders, say, $50 a year, be a solution?

Pelikan: Well, I think all funding options for libraries have to be discussed. I don't think anything is so sacrosanct that you can't talk about it.

Across the state of California, libraries are in big trouble — probably even more than the school districts. Why? Ninety-two percent of all public library funding comes from the local level. As soon as the local support erodes, public libraries erode.

We have to keep our options open, but here is the other side. Seventy-five percent of Carmel's income overall comes from outside people, so that creates an artificial argument.

We did a survey about two years ago and asked our users what they wanted. Of course they said they want more hours — they always say that. Eighty percent of the people who come into the library shopped in Carmel. We know that, in a month, somewhere between 10,000 and 12,000 people march in and out of our doors. That's a lot of people coming into our community.

We are one of the few city departments — or city services — that actually bring people into our community.

Pine Cone: All and all, doesn't Carmel manage to pay a lot per citizen for library services?

Pelikan: Yes. The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea pays more than $100 a year per capita to support libraries. At the county, the funding is $14. Why can you have one district with such a high level of funding right next to a district with almost nothing?

My reply is that it is a true American notion here — local control: "Let's build a community, let's start a school and a library. Let's have them reflect our community. And we want them to provide service the way we want it."

Local control.

Pine Cone: What, then, makes Carmel unique?

Pelikan: One of our focuses has to be the senior outreach — which is not surprising, since the average age of a woman is 52. That's not going to be true in another community.

I'm always surprised when I talk to librarians in Watsonville. Geographically, it's not that far away. Their biggest focus is Spanish language material. And language material for its Yugoslavian population.

Pine Cone: Is there a correlation between hours of operation and use?

Pelikan: Yes. It is not an hour-to-hour correlation, however. In the last three years, we've decreased our hours by 30-percent. But, in the same time period, we have had only a 10-percent decrease in circulation and foot traffic.

That means a lot of people have thought, "These hours are inconvenient, but I still want to go to the library."

The weird thing is that in this same time period we have seen increases in the number of reference questions by 10 percent. Attendance at programs has also increased by nearly the same amount.

Pine Cone: Why would reference inquiries go up?

Pelikan: People have discovered that we are one of the few that still does the in-depth reference.

People find where they get the best service and then they return.

Pine Cone: Explain for the readers where most of the money for the Harrison Memorial Library comes from.

Pelikan: The biggest chunk of our support — about 70 percent — comes from the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea. Salaries. Facilities. Maintenance. That's about half a million dollars a year.

That is a huge commitment. Again, Carmel has one of the highest per-capita library supports in the United States. We beat hands down Beverly Hills, Boston...

Pine Cone: Our usual comparison cities...

Pelikan: (laughs)... We get about 10 percent of our support from the state of California — for various special programs that are "use-dependent." For anyone from outside our jurisdiction who checks out a book, we get 12 cents a book.

The third part of this "picture" is private donations from our foundation. We used to get only 2 percent of our support from private money. Now it is up to about 20 percent, which is remarkable.

Pine Cone: Do you think the post-recessionary future will call upon more private support?

Pelikan: People are going to have to realize that free public libraries are not really free. They are very expensive. The best comment I ever heard came from the Santa Cruz librarian who said, "We must make it politically impossible for public officials to vote against libraries."

Pine Cone: ...But should libraries be sacred? Shouldn't their funding compete on a level field with other public services?

Pelikan: It is interesting to me that during the Great Depression, everything was cut but libraries. Those of us who feel that the real long-term answers to society's problems lie in infrastructure — that is, education, child care, health, libraries — believe in the importance of libraries. We have to put more money in the front end rather than the back end.

now in the second phase — actually began eight or nine weeks ago with the clearing of trees and roadways, according to Jerry Lohr, president of J. Lohr Properties and Lohr Vineyards. He said road work began about three weeks ago.

Regarding the Del Ciervo Road realignment, Lohr noted that motorists turning onto 17-Mile Drive from Del Ciervo have to contend with a 30-degree angle that makes it difficult to see in both directions. "We're going to make that a sharper turn, which will make it much safer."

About 700 feet from the intersection of 17-Mile Drive and Del Ciervo, Lohr said workers are creating a shallower slope on a "knob" that hinders visibility on Del Ciervo Road near the Macomber Estates.

According to Lohr — a longtime Monterey County landowner and builder — infrastructure improvements will be completed this fall, with the repaving of Del Ciervo Road and hydroseeding along its banks. He said it's still too early to predict how much individual lots would be sold for.

"It's a little premature at this time because we haven't made them available yet," said Lohr. "All lots are at least two-and-one-half acres. We expect to list them formally when we have the improvements completed, which we anticipate by the end of September."

Minimizing inconvenience

Lohr said J. Lohr Properties is making every effort to minimize inconvenience to Pebble Beach residents.

Man dies after falling from cliff in Big Sur

A SAN JOSE man died last week after falling from a 300-foot cliff in Big Sur, according to a Monterey County Sheriff's Department report.

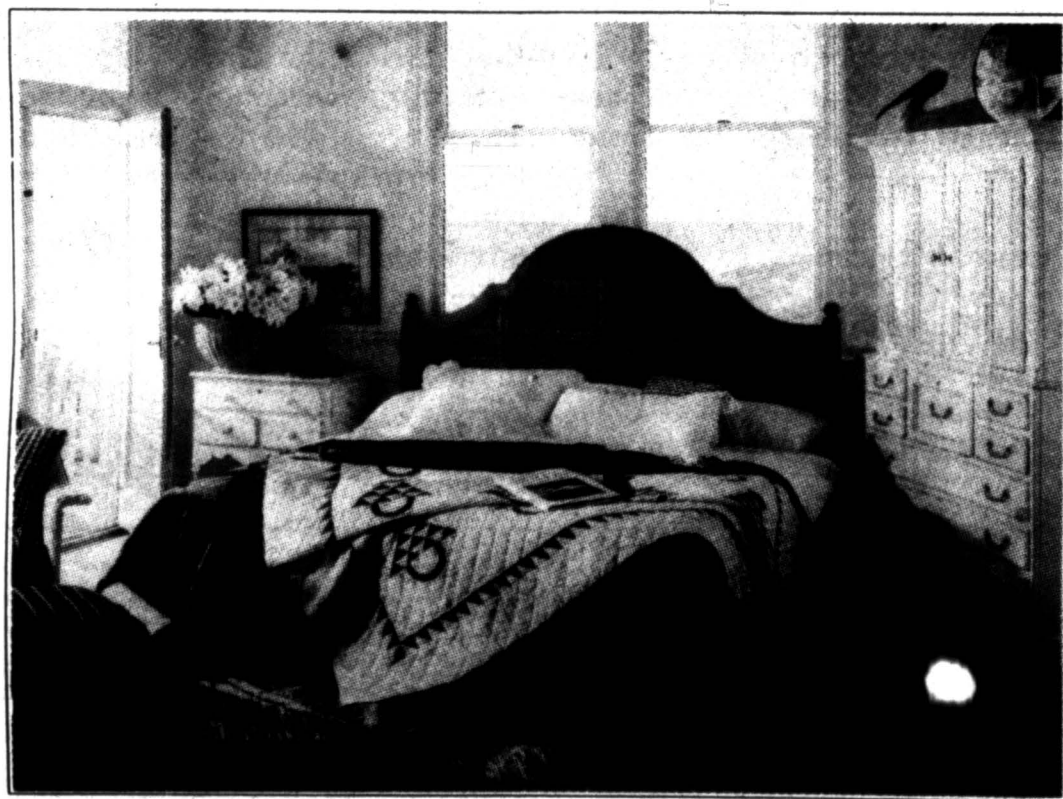

Charles Watters, 22, and his cousin, Thomas McDonald, had reportedly pulled off Highway 1 at Grimes Creek Canyon to take a photograph on July 21. Watters had climbed a short distance down a steep cliff to pose for a picture.

As he sat on a granite boulder with his back to the ocean, it gave way and he fell down the cliff backward.

Although the fire department, ambulance and sheriff's department rescue team responded, Watters was pronounced dead at the scene.

There were indications that Watters had been drinking, according to the sheriff's department.

Local photographer donates work for posterity

■ The project could take a year, but John Livingstone wants to give something back to City of Carmel.

By PAUL WOLF

THE FACE of a city changes little by little — a feature here, a feature there. But over the decades, the old landscape is left transformed. Enter the wonder of photography.

John Livingstone, a Carmel photographer, intends to document the appearance of Carmel in the sharpest of detail. He already has been given the green light by the Carmel City Council.

At a minimum, he will photograph every storefront on Ocean Avenue. If at all "feasible," he will develop images of every business in the entire commercial sector.

He is undaunted by the task.

"This will be a very time-consuming process," he said. "It could take as long as a year, progressing two or three blocks per week, to finish this project."

The product of his labor will become archival material for the Carmel Planning Department. The Carmel City Council, voting unanimously July 5, gave

JOHN LIVINGSTONE is donating his photographs of the business district to the City of Carmel

Livingstone the nod with the intention that an identical project be conducted each decade.

More than pleased

"We are overjoyed he is doing this," said Carmel Mayor Ken White. "I think this is an innovative idea. We are also encouraging him to do the whole commercial district."

Carmel city staff, which forwarded a recommendation in support to the council, praised the project. "There is no question that a complete set of photographs of storefronts would be of historic interest," wrote Planning Director Brian Roseth. "Had such a set of photographs been taken every 10 years since the city's incorporation, it would tell a remarkable story of the city's growth and development."

All negatives will be donated to the city in the names of all businesses participating in the project, Livingstone said.

Livingstone, 68, a Carmel resident since 1951, said he hopes to recoup his costs by requesting all businesses buy color enlargements of their respective storefront. At best, the photographer will break even.

The labor is the key donation. Livingstone predicts he could spend as much as 12 hours a week on the voluntary assignment.

The council's approval was needed not because Livingstone must deal with scores of business operators, but because he must enlist the cooperation of the Carmel Public Works Department.

For as long as a half hour each weekday morning, barricades will block a small portion of Ocean Avenue, according to City Administrator Jere Kersnar. "We don't want disruption," he said.

Such blockades, however, will not be necessary at the Carmel Plaza, where the photographer begins the project next week. The Plaza's roughly 100 shops will take about two weeks to photograph, Livingstone said.

He is author of the photo-filled coffee table book Carmel By Itself: Portrait of a Unique American Community. His love affair with Carmel continues with his current project, fueled by his desire to "give back" to his hometown.

The images, he said, will be literal depictions of the buildings and their occupants. "This is not supposed to be anything artsy," he explained. "These will be as accurate and historic as I can make them."

Carmel spearheads campaign to fight pine tree disease

By PAUL WOLF

AS A virulent fungal disease has the potential to devastate pine forest throughout the peninsula, Carmel has taken a lead role in seeking expert help to halt its spread.

The key appears to be to place the pitch canker problem on regional and state agendas, according to Carmel City Forester Gary Kelly.

"We need to get to the people who hold the purse strings, or at least who make the decisions, to fund research to find resistant strains of Monterey pines," Kelly said.

Consider these developments that show Carmel on the forefront of seeking a solution:

- Kelly has assembled tree professionals from Monterey, Pacific Grove, Salinas, the California Department of Forestry, the California Department of Transportation and other agencies to find a solution to pitch canker.

Calling itself the Pitch Canker Task Force, the group has been meeting regularly, Kelly said. "We are going to be hearing a lot about these issues in the near future," he said.

Planting huge numbers of seedlings — themselves susceptible to the disease — or going after the insects that harbor the disease do not appear to be the answer. Finding genetic variations that are not susceptible does, Kelly said.

- At the City of Carmel's behest, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors has slated the pitch canker topic for its Sept. 6 agenda.

The scheduling, Kelly said, was arranged by 5th District Supervisor Sam Karas. For now, Kelly is unsure who will make the presentation to the board.

- The city has drawn "positive responses" to a letter

TRAFFIC ON Highway 1 south of Ocean Avenue was stalled in both directions Tuesday afternoon shortly before 1 p.m. after a Volkswagen went off the embankment. The Bug went over the edge when the driver, a resident of San Luis Obispo, swerved to avoid a car turning left onto Morse Drive. The car suffered extensive damage, but the woman emerged without a scratch.

Supervisors approve modified design of CV commercial building

By SUSAN BECK

RESPONDING TO neighbors' complaints about a proposed two-story commercial building adjacent to their Mid Valley homes, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors voted 5-0 Tuesday to approve a modified version of the structure's original design.

More than 100 residents signed a petition opposing John and Ruth Picard's 9,000-square-foot warehouse-retail building on Berwick Drive and Center Street, next to the Mid Valley Shopping Mall.

"It's been a fight," said Pat Kauffman, whose home on Center Street faces the project site. "But

Left-turn lane plan turns heads in village

■ Not a done deal yet, but Farina says 'it's pretty well down the pike.'

By SUSAN BECK

THE POSSIBILITY of putting a left-turn lane through Carmel Valley Village has some people in the community revved up.

More than one-and-a-half years ago, Monterey County Public Works proposed traffic safety improvements to several segments of Carmel Valley Road, including a turning lane in the middle of the rural thoroughfare.

After a series of debates at several public meetings, the subject subsided. Until recently, when it was brought up again at the July 14 Carmel Valley Road Improvement Committee meeting.

Carmel Valley resident Randy Randazzo, who attended the meeting, said he was surprised to hear about plans to add a left-hand lane from Pilot

Road to Esquiline Road through the heart of town.

An additional lane at Pilot Road would force a widening of Carmel Valley Road, Randazzo noted. That improvement would cut into the new "Welcome Garden" developed at the entrance of the village by the Carmel Valley Village Improvement Committee (CVVIC), he added.

"That really upsets me," said Randazzo, a CVVIC member. "We have already spent $10,000 on that project. We've worked with public works. They should have said something."

Major denial

Fran Farina, chair of the road committee, said the environmental impact report for the Carmel Valley Road improvement plan recommended a two-way, left-turn lane from Pilot to Esquiline.

The December 1990 recommendation was confirmed in a long-term improvement plan adopted by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors June 8, 1993, she added.

A month before the board adopted the plan, Farina made a presentation to CVVIC about the proposal.

"This particular design was brought to their attention with a recommendation they work directly with public works to determine if this is an appropriate design for their community," Farina noted.

"I've asked community members to follow through several times in the past 15 months," she added. "Therein lies the problem. What has the community done to communicate its desires and concerns to public works?"

Zan Henson, a Carmel Valley attorney and road committee member, said he personally doesn't want the turn lane.

"And I know I'm not alone in this," Henson added. "Now, I might be alone on this as far as the committee goes...I don't know."

The road improvement committee was established in 1992 by then Monterey County Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman.

The committee was formed to develop suggestions for safety improvements to Carmel Valley Road and make recommendations to the board of supervisors.

The beauty of the committee is its diversity of representation for Carmel Valley, Henson said. Among the members are Patricia Bernardi, Dick Heuer, Robert Greenwood, Tom Gray, Alan Williams, Tony Lombardo, Roger Williams and Lee Rieman.

"If the committee, or CVVIC, opposed the left-turn lane in Carmel Valley Village," Henson noted, "it would carry a lot of weight. My sense within the village, is that people do not want a passing lane."

Is it a done deal? Farina says no. "But it's pretty well down the pike," she said. "However, we still need to develop a financial plan."

County highway projects on freeze

ing at 1998," Potter declared.

In anticipation of funding authorization in 1996, Caltrans continued design work for the freeway. That advance preparation has been dropped, according to Potter.

Statewide, the new focus is on structures that were damaged by the January quake — or which could be affected by another. At least 1,300 bridges throughout the state need upgrading, Potter said.

Of the total $4.3 million in operational improvements promised for Highway 1, only $400,000 worth are still scheduled to move forward over the next year, Potter said, citing to a prediction made by one Caltrans official.

Those Highway 1 projects include:
■ A second westbound through-lane at Rio Road.

■ A dual left-turn for traffic traveling south onto Carmel Valley Road.

■ Extending the distance of the merging lane on Highway 1 south of Ocean Avenue.

The other interim projects, he said, should follow at some unspecified time, but not immediately, as originally promised. No predictions can be made with confidence, Potter said. Many questions about individual projects on the Monterey Peninsula will be answered at the Aug. 10 California Transportation Committee meeting.

Carmel home sustains $40,000 damage in Tuesday blaze

He said it took about 13 minutes from the time the call came in at 7:41 p.m. to squelch the blaze on San Antonio between 11th and 12th avenues.

Sixteen firefighters responded to the scene in three minutes to put out the fire that started in the living room, Kastros added.

"Unfortunately, thin, cheap extension cords are very fragile," Kastros noted. "I wouldn't use them for anything. If you do use them, the rule is: The extension cord must be at least as thick as the cord it is being plugged in to. Buy thick, heavy-duty extensions cords."

CV building to remain as 2-story

Sam Karas is wonderful. He's for the people. It's nice to know you can go to your supervisor and get help."

Rather than voting June 28 on the project, Monterey County Supervisor Karas recommended the board postpone a decision to give the residents and the Picards a chance to "seek amenity in the neighborhood."

The key complaint was traffic that would be generated by an exit driveway onto Center Street. The modified design shifted the building closer to Center Street, placing the driveways on the north side of the structure facing Carmel Valley Road, with the entrance and exit onto Berwick Drive instead.

Another recommendation on the petition asked that the structure — designed for office space, warehousing and retail sales of African and Italian imports — be reduced to a one-story building. But the board did not request a change in the height of the building.

"We are still not happy about the height," Kauffman said. "But the big concern was the driveway."

The Picards expressed displeasure at the June hearing about making changes to their design plans.

After the board's decision Tuesday, the Picards declined to comment.

FEAST OF LANTERNS

Pacific Grove's 'Midsummer Night's Dream' set for weekend

PG native has dream come true as Feast's Queen Topaz for 1994

By BETH PENNEY

LENA HAKIM'S poise and assuredness belie her 16 years. Part of this maturity comes from serving on Pacific Grove's Royal Court for three years before being selected as Queen Topaz this year. Part of it comes from Lena's confidence about what she wants to do with her life.

A Monterey Peninsula native and an incoming senior at Pacific Grove High School, Lena says her first memory of Pacific Grove's Feast of Lanterns dates back to the third grade.

"I remember seeing the princesses coming down the stairs, and they were so beautiful," she recalled. "Ever since then I've wanted to be one of them."

That wish came true and then some. Lena served as Princess Amethyst, Princess Jade and Princess Pearl before earning the title of Queen Topaz. She has found, in four seasons on the Court, that the honor brings with it a lot of responsibility.

And that responsibility increased when she became Queen.

By BETH PENNEY

AS YOU SIT on the Pacific Grove Beach on Saturday night and watch the dream-like magic of the softly-colored paper lanterns being lit in windows, along the sea wall and along the shore, you may overhear a fellow beachgoer ask, "What is the Feast of Lanterns all about?"

How did this tradition get started? How long has this been going on? Why do they do it? And the questioner may get as many answers as there are people on the beach.

Pacific Grove's Feast of Lanterns, now in its 89th year, is a happy melange of several traditions. The oldest festival on the Central Coast, the Feast celebrates ancient legends, the crowning of a queen, a midsummer barbeque at the beach, the city's founding and Pacific Grove's small-town way of life. It has evolved as a mixture of many influences and it has been added to and subtracted from over the years.

Pacific Grove's Feast of Lanterns was created by its city and its people, and it is a unique event that reflects the city's imagination, its history, its location and its heritage.

Methodist Beginnings

In 1879, the Chautauqua Assembly was organized in Pacific Grove, which was then a Christian summer retreat founded by the Methodist-Episcopal Church of San Francisco. This Assembly, named after a religious retreat at Lake Chautauqua, N.Y., presented lectures, entertainment and cultural activities.

'Sunset' putting CV on the map

■ Magazine article triggers flood of calls to chamber.

By SUSAN BECK

SUNSET MAGAZINE'S article in its August issue on Carmel Valley Village has the telephone ringing off the hook at the Carmel Valley Chamber of Commerce office.

"It's overwhelming," said Ann Olivier, the chamber's executive director. "It's a boon, and we really need it."

Olivier said more than 25 callers, from as far away as Alaska, have inquired about Carmel Valley. "And I just got my copy Saturday."

Peter Coakley, Carmel Valley Village Improvement Committee (CVVIC) member and Valley Lodge owner, initially contacted the magazine in May 1992 about doing a feature article on CVVIC's endeavor to transform the unincorporated village from a "rag-tag" town into a charming country village.

Lora Finnegan from Sunset arrived last March and was wined and dined by committee members, but left without making any commitment.

"It wasn't what I expected," Coakley said. "But we are going to get some business out of this. I've already received two reservations in response to the article. I haven't even seen the magazine yet."

While he admits a lot more needs to be done to make Carmel Valley Village a booming tourist attraction, he noted, "every little bit helps to fill up the pub."

Sunset's piece, titled "Rural ramblings in Carmel Valley," is part of a larger article on midsummer getaways, including Santa Barbara and Portland, Ore. The highlights focus on two local wineries, several restaurants and resorts plus Garland Ranch Regional Park. In addition, there is mention of the upcoming 5th annual Carmel Valley Fiesta Aug. 5-7, which is sponsored by the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club.

Randy Randazzo, chamber of commerce president, said the article is "putting us on the map." Tourism will benefit everyone who lives in Carmel Valley, he added.

"The money that is spent in the village goes around several times. I'm pleased about the response to the article. It will give business a shot in the arm."

There is something going on east of Highway 1 that warrants investigation, Randazzo noted.

"We have everything to offer — swimming, tennis, horseback riding — all within walking distance. Not too many communities can brag about that."

Bob and Dolores Hope to attend Aug. 11 event for Golden Bough

COME CELEBRATE Virginia Stanton's 91st birthday with Bob and Dolores Hope when Pacific Repertory Theatre — formerly GroveMont Theater Arts — stages "A Midsummer Madness & Fantasy Auction" on Thursday, Aug. 11 in Carmel.

If successful, the event will be the final push in Pacific Repertory Theatre's campaign to renovate the historic Golden Bough facility and complete its conversion from a movie theater to a playhouse.

"With Virginia Stanton's 91st birthday and Bob and Dolores Hope planning to attend, we think this is going to be a very special evening," said Stephen Moorer, founder and artistic director of Pacific Repertory Theatre.

Madcap celebration

The madcap midsummer celebration will kick off at 6 p.m. at the All Saints' Parish Hall (located at Lincoln and 9th in Carmel) — with a bountiful buffet of gourmet foods, fine California wines and silent auction treasures. Moorer said Pacific Repertory Theatre artists will perform musical and theatrical excerpts from their upcoming holiday production of A Midsummer Night's Dream, scheduled to "preview" the Golden Bough stage this winter.

Then, at 7:30 p.m., one will be able to stroll around the corner to Carmel's historic Golden Bough Playhouse, where a dozen "fantasy items" will be auctioned off to the highest bidder.

According to Moorer, each auction item will be presented during a theatrical fantasy pageant entitled "Fun and Frolic through the Ages." David Armanasco will serve as auctioneer.

An 'atypical' event

"We're really trying to make it atypical," said Moorer. "It's not going to be just an auction, it's going to be a show."

Among the fantasies is a $6,000 nine-day cruise from Aruba to Acapulco aboard the elegant Star Odyssey, Royal Cruise Line's newest luxury liner. Ports of call include Aruba, San Blas Islands, Panama Canal, San Jose (Costa Rica) and Acapulco. A departure date of Dec. 13 has been set.

Moorer said other auction items will include a cruise to the Sea of Cortez, a week in Bora Bora or Kapalua Golf Villas, a private dinner for 10 at Rancho San Carlos and a sumptuous Ventana Inn dream package.

The stars will come out at 8:30 p.m., when Golden Bough's stage hosts famous folk and favorite friends who will gather to toast Stanton's birthday. Cake, cabernet and coffee will be offered to all who attend.

The event will mark the first time in 25 years that guests will visit the Golden Bough as a live theater rather than a movie theater, according to Moorer.

Persons interested in attending A Midsummer Madness & Fantasy Auction are asked to call Michael or Julie at the Pacific Repertory Theatre — 622-0700 or 622-0100. All 330 tickets must be reserved by Aug. 5 and are available on a first-come, first-serve basis only. Attire is described as "Carmel style" and valet parking will be available.

Moorer said all proceeds from the event will go toward the renovation of the Golden Bough Playhouse.

To be flea-free

IF YOU'RE having trouble with pesky fleas this summer, don't forget about the "recipe" I gave you for a nontoxic flea dust.

Mix 2 cups of food grade diatomaceous earth (available at nurseries and garden shops) with 1 cup each of baking soda and corn starch. Use a flour sifter to dust over carpets, under furniture and along baseboards. This really works and, best of all, it won't harm you or the environment.

I've also read about a product called Terminator for Carpets and Furniture. It's described as an inorganic salt compound that's worked into carpets and its effectiveness lasts one year. This sounds very similar to the compound used by companies that treat your homes and also make a one-year guarantee, and I've heard that's very effective.

According to Omnicare Pet International, the distributor, Terminator for Carpets and Furniture is EPA-registered and completely natural, odorless and safe for pets.

Terminator has other products to help with total flea elimination including: Terminator for Hardwood, Tile, and Vinyl Floors; Terminator Yard & Kennel; and Ladybug for Fleas — beneficial nematodes that attack and feed on flea eggs, larvae and pupae for up to six weeks.

There are several companies marketing beneficial nematodes for flea control and this is an excellent alternative to chemical pesticides. The nematodes are sold as a granular product that you mix with water, then spray on lawns or any soil where pets lie.

Beneficial nematodes aren't harmful to humans or animals. They won't injure ladybugs, earthworms, honey bees or other "good" insects and they aren't a concern to wildlife or groundwater. Sounds almost too good to be true, doesn't it? Remember, it's important to treat your pets, your house and your yard for effective flea control, so don't delay — get rid of fleas today!

enjoy chasing a remote control mouse! This battery-operated toy has a swiss cheese controller with forward and reverse movement and one-button operation so it's simple for any member of the family to use. Of course, children should have parental supervision. It's made by Fun-Damental Too Ltd., so ask for it at your local pet supply store.

Controlling static electricity

Many cat owners report problems controlling static electricity in cat hair. A coat conditioner for pets is most often used, and one product that's very good is Coat Gloss by Ring 5. It eliminates static and lubricates the coat for easy brushing. You can order Coat Gloss from the R.C. Steele catalogue by calling 800-872-3773.

Never, never use Static Guard or clothes dryer anti-static sheets on your cats' coats. These products have caused severe allergic reactions in many cats.

Stolen car recovered in Beverly Hills

■ Sonoma County parolee charged with grand theft auto.

By SCOTT BREARTON

A 1992 Jeep Cherokee stolen in downtown Carmel last week from a local businessman was recovered three days later in Beverly Hills, according to police.

Carmel Police Detective Sgt. Pete Poitras said Walter Lee Capps, a 26-year-old parolee from Sonoma County, was arrested last Thursday in Beverly Hills after allegedly knocking a woman to the ground, grabbing her purse and attempting to flee.

Poitras said a subsequent investigation revealed Capps had been driving the vehicle stolen from the intersection of Ocean Avenue and Mission in downtown Carmel on July 18. The owner had left his vehicle unlocked with the keys in the ignition.

"They ran a check on it, realized it was stolen from here, and called us," said Poitras.

"The victim in this case was truly fortunate," he added. "Not only was his vehicle recovered in good condition, but the property inside - a cellular phone and laptop computer - was still there."

Capps is currently being held in Los Angeles County Jail on a parole hold from Sonoma County, according to Poitras, noting the suspect - who has "an extensive criminal history" - now faces charges of violating conditions of his parole, strong-armed robbery and grand theft auto.

"Once again, this points out that people with criminal intent are visiting the City of Carmel on a much more regular basis," Poitras observed.

"You must take precautions. Lock your car and don't leave your keys in it."

Air pollution control district celebrates 20th anniversary; sponsors free bus rides Tuesday

THE MONTEREY Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District is sponsoring a free "The Bus Is On Us" day Tuesday.

Residents of Monterey, Santa Cruz and San Benito counties are invited to ride free on all primary bus transit lines within the three-county area.

The free bus day is part of the district's 20th anniversary celebration. Other events include a children's "Clean Air Art Contest" and an amnesty program for businesses which need to comply with air quality permit requirements.

"Using public transportation is one of the best ways for everyone to help reduce air pollution," said Abra Bennett, district air pollution control officer.

The anniversary will culminate with the seating of a new Air District Board of Directors, which will, for the first time, include representatives from cities throughout the three-county air basin.

Information on Tuesday's routes and schedules may be obtained by contacting the local bus lines.

Human remains found in Los Padres forest

U.S. MARINES found the skeletal remains of a man last week while searching for marijuana gardens in a remote area of the Los Padres National Forest, according to a Monterey County Sheriff's Department report.

The remains were identified as those of Caton Vezeau, a 25-year-old transient who had been reported missing in 1990.

The grim discovery was reportedly made on July 19, and the sheriff's department was notified the following day. A human skull and other bones belonging to Vezeau were found near a campsite with a tent and sleeping bag, along with papers bearing his name.

The sheriff's report said there was no indication of foul play and the cause of death is unknown.

Sanctuary council sets vessel traffic workshop for Friday

THE MONTEREY Bay National Marine Sanctuary Advisory Council will hold a workshop on vessel traffic safety from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Friday at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey.

According to officials, the public briefing and workshop will address the challenge of protecting the sanctuary's waters from vessel accidents, particularly oil tankers that could threaten its natural resources.

The workshop will be held in Room 102 of the Naval Postgraduate School.

Crime Tip

FROM THE CARMEL POLICE

Lock it up or lose it!

IT'S A BUSY day.

People have been flocking in and out of your store all morning. You haven't had time for a cup of coffee, let alone finish today's deposit. You came in early just to get that out of the way, but the phone started ringing the minute you walked through the door. All you've had time to do was pull out the bank bag and put the cash on your desk. "Private - Employees Only" proclaims the sign on your door. No need to lock it, no one would go back there.

It's lunch time already, and you decide to drop off the deposit on the way to the restaurant. As you head back to the office, you notice that the door is ajar. No problem, you must have left it that way this morning. Then you realize your money's not where you left it. A frantic search leaves no doubt; a whole day's work has gone up in smoke. How could this happen? This is a private office. Surely people can read? While most people can read the word "private," not everyone will honor the concept.

Every summer we see an increase in the thefts of purses, wallets, and cash receipts from private storerooms and offices. If that's not bad enough, many of these items are stolen from behind the counter right under the sales staff's nose.

Be 'safe'

Summer's here folks! If you don't lock it up, you stand a good chance of losing it. If you have a safe, please use it. No safe? Then lock your valuables in a desk drawer or filing cabinet.

Don't leave your hard earned cash sitting out on your desk. There are simply too many people walking around just waiting for an opportunity to rip you off.

Remember that guy you found in your store room last week? You know, the one who said he was just looking for the restroom. Well, the odds are he was looking for more than just a place to relieve himself. He could very well have been looking to relieve you ... of your hard earned cash.

We all must take steps to protect ourselves these days, and a secure place in which to lock up our valuables is essential. If you have questions regarding security matters, please don't hesitate to call us at 624-6403. We'd be happy to help.

Town hall meeting set for Aug. 16

■ Mayor White to 'collect ideas' at informal 'Public Speakout.'

By PAUL WOLF

IN AN effort to make good on his promise to be an "accessible mayor," Ken White has scheduled a free-form, open-ended town hall meeting next month.

The event, dubbed a "Public Speakout," is slated for 7 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 16, at the Vista Lobos meeting room in Carmel.

KEN WHITE

And it promises to be the most informal of its kind.

"Its purpose will simply be to collect ideas — any ideas," White said. "It is a way for us to make improvements to our city."

It is White, elected in 1992, and re-elected in April, who has resurrected the practice of holding town hall meetings in Carmel. But after an active first year, he has scheduled none in recent months.

Previous town hall meetings have focused on specific topics. The aim of the August meeting, he said, is to "give residents ample opportunity to make comments on how their government is working and to offer ideas and suggestions."

He added: "We want to hear from the citizens in constructive ways. This is a chance for people to dream a little."

White has continued holding his mayor's breakfast meetings nearly every month. Those events, which include representatives from various city groups, are by invitation only.

The purpose of the town hall meetings, White has explained, is to hear from residents in a less formal setting than the regularly scheduled Carmel City Council meetings.

'24-hour Relay Challenge' set for November at CHS

■ Cooperative fund raiser will benefit programs that support healthy activities for area teens.

By SCOTT BREARTON

WALK, RUN or crawl over to the Carmel High School football field this fall - for the first-ever "24-hour Relay

CHS 1994 graduate Frank Allard receives college-sponsored National Merit Scholarship

CARMEL HIGH School 1994 graduate Frank Allard has been named a recipient of a college-sponsored Merit Scholarship, according to a report published recently by the National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

Allard - a CHS Salutatorian, Tandy Technology Scholar and freelance photographer - will receive $2,000 stipend payments from the University of Oregon each year for up to four years.

The scholarship award will be used toward tuition at the University of Oregon, which has already accepted Allard into its Honors College for the fall semester.

While Allard has not yet declared a major, his interests include photography and marine biology. Challenge," an upcoming fund raiser for programs that support healthy activities for young people.

Here's how it works, according to CHS counselor Lauren Cohen, who is co-directing the event with Janet Myer, a parent who brought Community Against Substance Abuse (CASA) to Carmel two years ago. Teams of 10 - both students and adults - will take turns circling the track one mile at a time, one person at a time, for 24 hours straight.

The event will be held from 10 a.m. Saturday, Nov. 5 to 10 a.m. Sunday Nov. 6 at CHS and will conclude with a community pancake breakfast slated for 10 a.m. Sunday.

Cohen said the relay challenge will be the culminating event of Carmel Unified School District's Red Ribbon Week, during which students wear red ribbons to signify their pledge to abstain from alcohol and drug use.

'Community mobilizer'

"First and foremost, the 24-hour Relay Challenge is a community mobilizer, which Carmel needs to bring the business community, law enforcement and the schools together," Cohen said.

The CHS football field and track will be transformed into "tent city" during the event, according to Cohen, and will be equipped with lighting and campsites for relay teams. Organizers promise they will feed all participants and are limiting the number of teams to 35.

Cohen said organizers are seeking about 100 volunteers to help prepare and serve meals and provide medical care and security for participants.

While the entry fee for the 24-hour Relay Challenge will be $400 per team (or $40 per participant), Cohen said organizers are encouraging entrants to seek sponsors from the business community.

Proceeds from the fund raiser will be used to support the local Youth to Youth program, peer counseling services, Red Ribbon Week celebrations, Sober Grad Nite and the community service program at CHS.

Persons interested in participating or volunteering their time are urged to call Cohen after Aug. 8 at 624-1821, or CASA headquarters at 648-4311.

ment of the property to minimize the logging impacts, and preserve its natural state. Price's restoration project has two objectives:

■ Restore a slope section of the main logging road with native plants and vegetation.

■ Survey the road system's erosion levels and provide a maintenance plan.

"Humans have done a lot of harm," Price noted. "Our purpose is to restore nature. Today, there are regulations for logging companies, such as providing buffer zones to protect streams. There is more awareness of what is happening to the environment."

Price has completed at least one restoration project at the preserve, Steen said. Her report already indicates other erosion control management needs that need to be addressed over the next few years, he added. "She is ahead of schedule."

Price will finish her internship at the end of August and return to San Luis Obispo to graduate in March. She enjoys the Monterey Peninsula and hopes to find a job here or elsewhere in Northern California.

Price said the opportunity to work with the Big Sur Land Trust has been a positive experience.

"This group is very efficient in everything that they do," she said. "They are a worthy organization. I'm impressed with everything about them."

Carmel officials to meet with McPherson

it sent out earlier this month, the forester said.

Assemblyman Bruce McPherson, a native of Santa Cruz County, where pitch canker has already done even more damage, has invited Kelly and Carmel Mayor Ken White to meet with him next month.

Meanwhile, although he states the issue was more a state than federal matter, Rep. Sam Farr, D-Carmel, has contacted officials with the U.S. Department of Interior and pledged to stay informed, according to Kelly.

While some limited research is being done by a team of scientists at the University of California at Berkeley, a study focusing on finding resistant strains is needed. "This needs to be done in a laboratory setting," Kelly said. "I think there is evidence certain subspecies of pines are not susceptible."

The letter the city sent out was drafted by Kelly, signed by White and authorized by the city council on July 5. Subsequently, it was sent to the board of supervisors, Farr, McPherson, State Sen. Henry Mello, Gov. Pete Wilson and State Resource Secretary Douglas Wheeler.

The letter could not have had a more urgent tone: "This (disease) could have a devastating impact on the economy, quality of life and environment of our area."

Carmel not alone with pitch canker problems

OUT OF some 4,000 pines on public property in Carmel, only 132 are known to be afflicted with pitch canker. But the disease has only secured a foothold in Carmel over the past several months.

Moreover, there is no known cure for the disease, which presents an "85 percent mortality rate" for each infected tree, according to City Forester Gary Kelly.

Carmel's trees are in the early state of infection, which is characterized by wilting branch tips and discolored needles.

The disease, first discovered in 1986 at New Brighton State Beach in Santa Cruz County, has made inroads into the forests of Pacific Grove, Monterey, Pebble Beach and neighboring communities. It has been identified in 10 counties throughout the state, from San Diego to Mendocino.

SHE'S WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE

College senior capitalizes on fellowship from Big Sur Land Trust; focuses on restoration work at Mitteldorf Preserve

By SUSAN BECK

ALTHOUGH THE remote bunk house at the Mitteldorf Redwood Preserve in Carmel Valley doesn't have electricity or a telephone, Tricia Price loves it just the same.

The 23-year-old senior from California Polytechnic University at San Luis Obispo has lived there for the past two months. Price is a student of forestry and natural resources with a specialty in hydrology. With the help of several volunteers, she is implementing a restoration and soil erosion control project for the preserve.

"This gives me a chance to know if this is what I want to do," Price said. "A lot of people visit us and go away completely jealous of my opportunity, which, by the way, fell into my lap."

Price was selected by the Big Sur Land Trust (BSLT) to be the first-ever recipient of The Jane McKay/Community Foundation Environmental Fellowship.

It happened during finals weeks, while she was deciding what to do for her senior project. A fax came in from BSLT, and the head of the forestry and natural resources department encouraged her to apply.

"I said, 'This is what I want to do. If it's right — it will happen,'" Price recalls.

Brian Steen, executive director for BSLT, said Price was chosen because she had the experience and curriculum background specifically required for the restoration work at Mitteldorf.

"Tricia's motivation and enthusiasm came across in her interview and hasn't stopped," Steen said. "She's exceptional."

Few women seek a career in the field of forestry hydrology, Price said, noting only two out of 10 classmates were women.

"Don't be intimidated by males," she said, "because, actually, they are intimidated by you. I've been in classes with a few women whose realm of intelligence far surpassed any of the men. It would blow you away."

Mitteldorf restoration

Price was raised in Sonoma County, where her family lives in the country. After years of camping and hiking, she developed a love of the outdoors.

"I wanted to be a forest ranger but decided to go into civil engineering instead because I have a strong background in math," Price said. "Three years ago, I changed my mind. I wanted to work outside, not inside."

The BSLT internship provides Price

the opportunity for a hands-on chance to do just that. Her work at Mitteldorf centers around the property's former main logging road.

"I would like to repair the scar — make it look like we haven't been there," she noted.

Logging camp

The former owners of the Mitteldorf Redwood Preserve, Lloyd and Mary Morain, sold the 1,057-acre property called Skylands Ranch in 1978 to Westbrook Land and Timber Co.

In 1984, a permit was obtained by Westbrook to log 105 acres, containing more than 3 million board feet of redwood, as well as madrone and tanbark oak trees.

In an attempt to save the largest redwoods, local resident Earl Moser convinced Westbrook's forester to spare the larger, more important trees and avoid areas that were environmentally sensitive.

Four years later, with more trees yet to be removed, BSLT approached the timber company to negotiate the purchase of the land and found a willing seller.

At the same time, Arthur and Harriett Mitteldorf visited the property and decided to provide most of the funds needed to buy the land. Those funds, along with a gift from Helen Hobart's estate, made it possible for BSLT to purchase the property Feb. 1, 1990 for $1.35 million. Westbrook was the last timber company to own redwood property in Monterey County.

Where There's a Will...

By THOMAS HART HAWLEY

Saving estate taxes by making gifts to spouse

AN IMPORTANT goal of most married couples is to provide for each other at death. Uncle Sam assists this common desire by allowing spouses to make tax free gifts of any size to each other during life or at death. There are some qualifications to this general rule you must keep in mind.

The gift to your spouse must be outright — that is, without strings attached. For example, even if a husband had visions of his widow lavishing his hard-earned money on her new husband, one can't make a gift that will end with a remarriage.

This requirement of an outright gift created problems for some taxpayers. To illustrate the problem let me introduce The Artful Dodger ("Art" to his friends). Art's passion in life, as you will see, is tax avoidance.

Roger Dodger?

Art is happily married to his second wife, Ellie Dodger. He has a child, Roger, by a former marriage. Art wants to bequeath his million dollar estate to Ellie for her to enjoy during her life. At Ellie's death, Art wants what's left of his property to go to Roger.

Art's in a bind. If he leaves the property to Ellie outright, she might just give his estate to her own children or, God forbid, the new husband. If Art leaves it to her in trust, the gift is not outright and she will pay tax on everything over $600,000.

■ The QTIP Trust: In an attempt to solve this problem, Uncle Sam, in 1981, created the "QTIP" trust. (Trust me, you don't want to know what QTIP stands for.)

Now Art can leave his property to a QTIP trust for the benefit of Ellie tax free. Ellie must have the right to receive all trust income. Art can also give her the right to receive support from the trust. In fact, he can even name Ellie as her own trustee. On Ellie's death, however, Art can direct that the property pass to Roger.

■ The QDOT Trust: After Uncle Sam gave us the QTIP trust, he started having recurring nightmares. He dreamed of the millionaire who dies leaving all of his money, tax free, to his wife who happens to be a citizen of Raritanian.

The bereaved widow takes her entire inheritance back to her native Raritanian. On her death it is the King of Raritanian, not Uncle Sam, who collects death taxes. (At this point Uncle Sam would wake up sweaty and nearly hysterical.)

Uncle Sam created the qualified domestic trust (or "QDOT" trust) to ensure that gifts to non-citizens stayed in the United States where they eventually could be taxed. If either you or your spouse is not a U.S. citizen, you must pay close attention to what follows. (Otherwise you can now skip directly to Doris Day's Best Friends.) Even if your spouse is not a citizen, if you leave her $600,000 or less, it doesn't matter since your gift will be protected by your $600,000 exemption. If you leave her more, the excess should pass to a QDOT trust. The most significant features of this trust are that one of the trustees must be a U.S. citizen and taxes must be withheld on distributions of principle.

Next week: We'll see how some married couples often waste their $600,000 exemption.

Thomas Hart Hawley, who has practiced on the Monterey Peninsula since 1969, is a certified specialist in probate, estate planning and trust law. Hawley's practice is located on San Carlos between 7th and 8th in downtown Carmel. He can be reached at 624-5339.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

How dangerous are older drivers? The issue is heating up because the number of older drivers is growing: 13 million age 70 or over in 1990, heading toward 19 million by the year 2000. On average, the accident rate for drivers up to age 75 is no worse than other adults, and much better than for teenagers. But the rate climbs among those past 75 and is quite high for drivers over 85. Illinois, Indiana and New Hampshire now require elderly drivers to take road tests for license renewal, and many states require vision tests. "Most elderly drivers are safe drivers," says a New York State licensing official. They are less likely to drive in rush hours, at night or in bad weather.

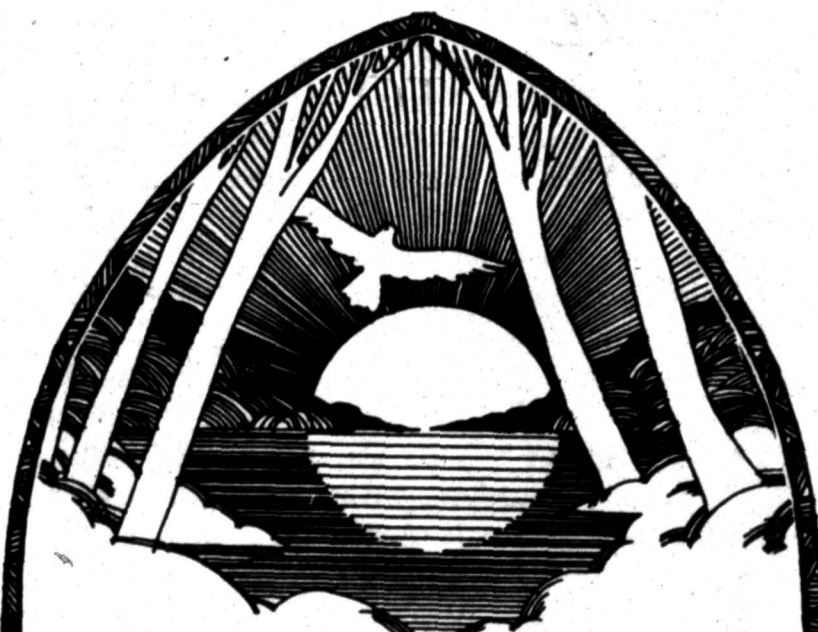

Victor Borge, the Danish pianist and wit, celebrated his 85th birthday at sea. Joining him aboard the Queen Elizabeth 2 were his five children, their spouses and nine grandchildren. Before leaving New York, Borge explained he didn't expect any store-bought gifts. Family tradition limits gifts to self-made items like a poem, a song or a funny story.

REBEKAH GREEN, a CHS freshman, says she works out at the CYC to stay in shape. The youth center weight room offers a wide variety of fitness equipment, including exercycles and a new 'Gravitrn' machine.

By SCOTT BREARTON

ARE THE summer doldrums setting in yet?

The Carmel Youth Center is keeping its doors open longer through Aug. 19, providing a place for teens to stay in shape, grab a bite to eat and make new friends.

"Our main purpose is just to keep the doors open so the kids can come in," said CYC director Pat Lenz.

The CYC's weight room - complete with free weights and state-of-the-art workout equipment - is open from 8 to 10 a.m. and 3 to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, according to Lenz, who noted supervision is provided by local college athletes home for the summer.

Robert Louis Stevenson 1990 graduate Brian Bajari - now a starting running back for New Hampshire's Dartmouth College - tops the list of helpful supervisors, along with Chuck Fair, a Carmel High School grad.

Currently, you'll find members of the CHS varsity football team pumping iron in preparation for the coming season. CHS coaches Craig Johnston, John Ables and Mike Kelly come in from time to time to keep the kids inspired.

Lenz said CHS 1994 graduate Drew Teti has been frequenting the CYC weight room since he was 13 years old.

"Drew has been a weight room regular," said Lenz. "In the afternoon, he's been helping out the football players. He thought it was kind of amusing because he knows the weight room better than any of them. He also comes in and helps the trainers."

Another regular is CHS junior Rex Wilcox, who is currently recovering from knee surgery with hopes of making the team this fall. Wilcox said he will have another knee operation next month.

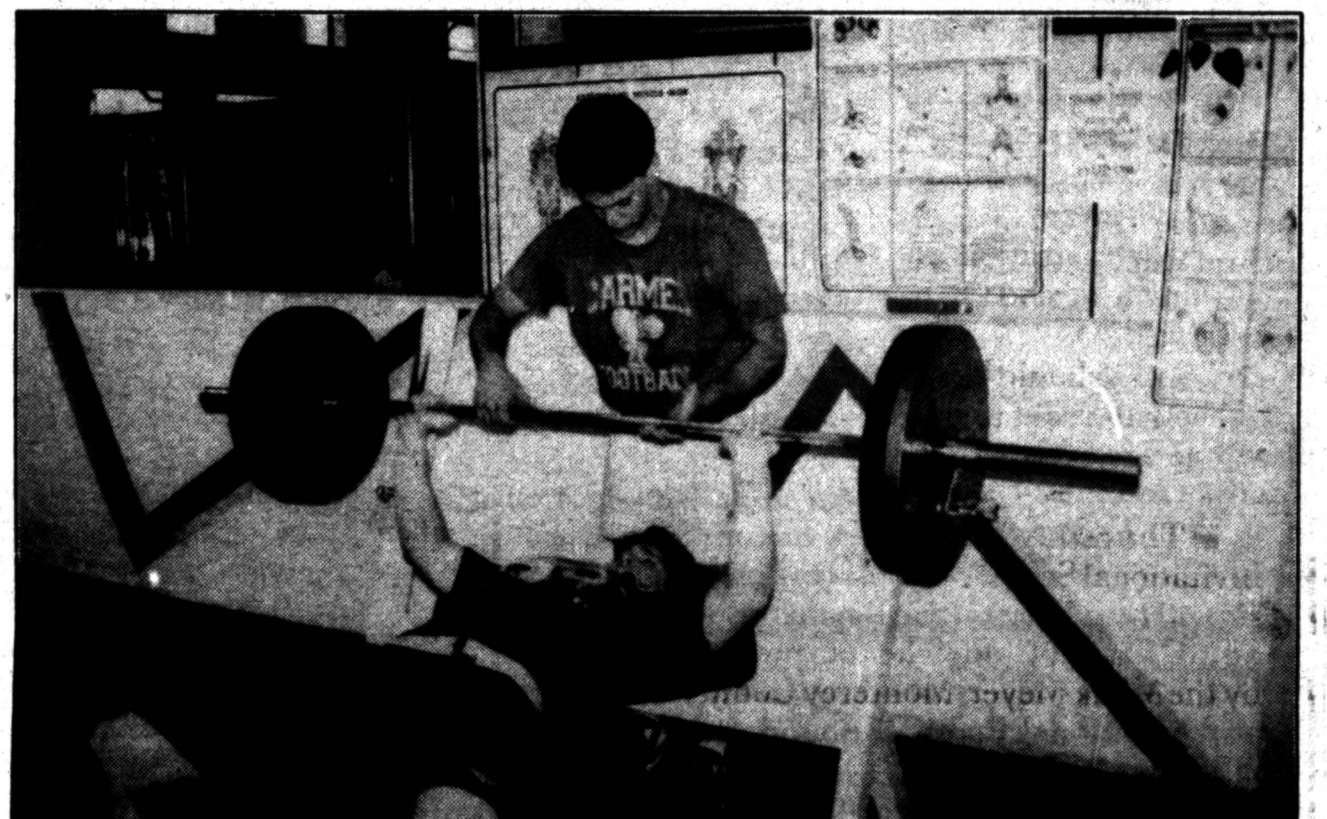

"Rex has lived here," Lenz related. "I told him when he graduates we're going to rename this the 'Rex Wilcox Gym' because he's in here every day."

Girls are welcome

And girls have been using the weight room more and more in preparation for fall sports and other extra-curricular activities. CHS freshman Jenny Schock is training for the girls softball and volleyball teams, while freshman Rebekah Green said she wants her "ripples to go away."

According to Lenz, an introductory weight training program for girls is offered from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Mondays and Wednesdays with instructor Gina Puccinelli.

Lenz says traffic at the youth center has been surprisingly slow this summer, perhaps due to a shortened summer vacation for Carmel Unified School District students. "They go back to school

JOSH CAMPBELL, a CHS sophomore who will play offensive tackle for the Padres this fall, bench presses about 225 pounds with the help of spotter and fellow team member Rex Wilcox.

pretty early now," he said, "so everybody is cramming their vacations into a shorter period of time."

But generally, Lenz said, the number of youth center patrons fluctuates. "There will be some weeks when we'll be pretty busy here and other weeks when it's dead."

The youth center diner, lounge and billiard room is open from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and from noon to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. Movies are shown on the CYC's big-screen television every afternoon. Indoor floor hockey with all new equipment also is offered. And Lenz said he will work to continue bringing live music to the youth center at least once a month.

Lenz said more high school students are beginning to use the youth center as a resource, something he has stressed from the beginning. "They thought it was a place for little kids," he said. "I've been going to the high school, stressing that it's for older kids, too."

Nowadays, Lenz says he's getting complaints from Carmel Middle School students who say there are too many older kids using the youth center. While it seems Lenz just can't win, he said many high school students have taken on the role of supervising their younger peers, something that has worked for everybody.

"We don't do anything glamorous," Lenz said. "We're not developing a cure for cancer or feeding the homeless. But what we do is just as important - giving the kids something to do, a place to go."

"Obviously it's working. We've been here since 1950."

Council's laudable goal is lost by setting aside good-faith bidders

WHEN CARMEL City Council members conduct official business, there is good reason why two non-elected officials sit with them at the dais.

As City Administrator Jere Kersnar leads the council through the maze of policy options, City Attorney Don Freeman tries to ensure the council does not stray down a risky legal path.

Unfortunately, that is what happened Tuesday, July 12, when council members awarded a contract for photocopy services to Copies by the Sea of Carmel instead of an out-of-town "lowest responsible bidder."

All but one council member failed to recognize where Kersnar's role leaves off and Freeman's begins, where the field of policy choices became shaky legal ground.

Indeed, Carmelites in general agree the desire to support local enterprises is laudable. But the laudability of a goal does not justify unsound decision making and a bad precedent.

Nearly unanimous

In the face of warnings by Kersnar and Freeman, the council voted 4-1 (with newcomer Paula Hazdovac dissenting) to award the bid to Copies by the Sea.

It was a rare day to see Freeman so insistent as he stressed the council was dutybound, although possibly not legally required, to select the lowest bidder, which was Instant Copy & Printing.

The Monterey company had submitted the lowest bid ($8,850). Mail Mart, also of Carmel, was second lowest ($10,685). Copies By The Sea — which has handled the city's photocopy services for years — was third ($12,675).

Mayor Ken White made the stunning comment: "While we may not be legal, we are trying to protect our local businesses."

And Councilman Bob Fischer said he would be willing to risk a court battle.

To city officials and residents alike, Copies by the Sea — which has done fine work for the city, including a generous amount gratis — was the sentimental favorite. And understandably so.

Affront to fair play

But to call for bids and then reject the outcome is an affront to fair play. How about the two businesses which took part in the process in good faith and are now left to wonder about the fairness of the process. There is something wrong with the notion that a single competitor was more worthy of special consideration.

With two Carmel businesses in the top three, the council's stress on protecting local businesses comes out sounding insincere. The issue seemed not so much the location of the business, but the operator.

While the mayor paid lip-service to avoiding the appearance of "favoritism," he and his colleagues offered no argument they were not guilty of engaging in just that.

In the end, the council took dubious action despite Kersnar's concern about wasting nearly $4,000 in taxpayer money and Freeman's analysis of the legal ramifications.

Even if the awarding of the bid was an "informed" decision made with the best of intentions — and supported by those residents who spoke up at the meeting — the professional staff rightfully believed it never should have been considered a viable option.

Letters to the Editor

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. Letters should not exceed 350 words in length. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address, telephone number and signature, and preferably be typed and double spaced. Anonymous letters, or those with no phone numbers will not be accepted.

Vote good, headline bad

Dear Editor:

I was happy to see that the city has renewed its contract with Copies-by-the-Sea, although I was not happy with The Carmel Pine Cone's July 14 headline regarding the council's action ("Council Subverts City Bidding Process to Award Local Contract").

I recognize that bids are indeed important in the conduct of a city's business, but there are other considerations of importance. In addition to local ownership, the quality of service is essential.

In this case it's rightfully the deciding factor, and I applaud the council's action.

Louise Stuart

A note from down under

Dear Editor:

I have greatly enjoyed my time in Carmel staying at the lovely Spinning Wheel Inn.

Carmel has changed a great deal since the last time I was here. It is still charming — but please, no more T-shirt shops. Those you have here are quite enough.

Let the T-shirt buyers go to Santa Cruz or Capitola! Not Carmel.

Thumbs up to PB plan

Dear Editor:

I want to express my support for the proposed new Pebble Beach Golf Course and Residential Lot Development Program. As a local businessman and longstanding Monterey Peninsula resident, I greatly appreciate the need for striking a balance between economic business growth and environmental preservation to sustain the community's natural beauty and prosperity.

The consistent application of environmental sensitivity to land use development has, through the years, enabled the Peninsula to grow without draining our natural resources and without incurring impact to the environment.

Through careful planning, I believe the Peninsula truly is structurally and environmentally more beautiful today than when I arrived 25 years ago.

I have reviewed Pebble Beach Co.'s proposed plans in detail and it is evident that much work has been done to continue this local tradition of careful and environmentally sensitive land use planning. I found their comprehensive plans highly reflect this sensitivity, as one only has to drive through Pebble Beach today to appreciate and understand the importance Pebble Beach Co. places on preservation and proper land use.

Pebble Beach Co. has long demonstrated a deep commitment to the careful preservation of the environment and I believe their proposed new Golf Course and Residential Lot Development Program will further serve to enhance the beauty and economic vitality of this community. I wholeheartedly support their efforts.

Cites PB Co.'s generosity

Dear Editor:

As an individual who is involved in golf in this area, I think it is important to point out some details about Pebble Beach Co. and its contributions to the community.

Pebble Beach Co. officials extend golfing privileges to many individuals and groups in our county. They consistently make courses available for fundraising tournaments at reduced costs. Three of their courses are used for more than 60 matches each year by local high school and junior college golfers. This service is provided at no cost.

Their practice facilities and the Peter Hay course are used many times during the year — again, at no cost — for junior golf clinics, lessons and tournaments.

Pebble Beach Co. officials also donate many rounds of golf, rooms and meals to local charitable organizations for fund raisers, not to mention their participation in the AT&T tournament, which helps raise more than $1 million annually for local charities.

I have always found Pebble Beach Co. easy to work with and, whenever possible, willing to help on the types of activities I have mentioned. It is my guess that many others in our community have had the same experience.

Carmelo Street residents deserve what was promised in first place

I AM SADDENED by the latest decision from the City of Carmel regarding a group of its people — the resident property owners of Carmelo Street. The decision is not isolated; it could have happened to residents of any street that was chosen for the two-foot reclaimed water line now going through Carmel.

We finally got the mayor, city administrator and public works director to come out and talk with Carmelo Street residents. I honestly thought we could persuade the city to right a wrong. The situation is not a simple one, and needs some backgrounding.

The reclaimed water line is for the Pebble Beach golf courses — a good cause — and for Pebble Beach Co. to build up to 350 homes with any leftover fresh water going to the rest of the peninsula. Pebble Beach paid for this entire project; the City of Carmel paid zero.

The original project contract said Carmelo would get repaved from edge-to-edge with asphalt cement. A letter sent to Carmelo people (and verbal promises) said we would get a repaved street from the Carmel Area Wastewater District. This was to be a partial payback for our inconvenience: torn-up street, dust, dirt, parking problems.

Later, according to a memo I got from the city, Carmel agreed to accept $72,500 in lieu of repaving Carmelo Street. City council approved the memo. Instead of the promised repaving, Carmelo will get a chip seal project — an oil coat with gravel thrown on it.

This will not correct the problems on Carmelo. The City of Carmel saw fit to deprive us of the small compensation.

The City of Carmel argues that this $72,500 is city money, even though the Pebble Beach Co. paid it for a specific purpose. Officials say they gave notice of the resolution to change the original contract — yes, in a predominantly Carmel Valley newspaper (the since-deceased Sun) and not The Carmel Pine Cone. I was in communication by letter with the city regarding Carmelo Street during the preparation of the resolution;

I was not personally informed of the resolution — nor do I know anyone else on Carmelo who was informed personally.

I believe the City of Carmel owed us notification by letter or personally of a change in the original contract. And now the city says it does not want a smooth, wide, high-speed highway. We are not asking for that, but merely the repaved roadway (which we were promised) to make Carmelo a safer and better street.

Our properties are now in greater danger, in case of an earthquake, if the two-foot pipe should break. Or even if there is a break in the line without an earthquake, which did happen in San Jose to a two-foot water line, as seen on the TV news on Monday night.

Carmelo Street was in bad shape before this project, and in many places is worse now, making it one of the problem streets of Carmel. After all, the contractor had the intention of repaving.

The city states that the contractor, at no cost, repaved the center berm; that six inches of bedrock and two inches of asphalt were put on top of this center berm and we now have a 12-foot center. The redoing of the center berm was a necessary part of the project, I believe — as it had a good chance of collapsing otherwise — and even with this redone top, it has collapsed in places and is still collapsing in others.

More, the City of Carmel proclaims a policy: In the future, only chip sealing (the oil and gravel) will be done on residential streets. I don't think there is any basis for this — only that the city did it in the past when streets had relatively good surfaces.

A chip seal job does not make a bad road good. As roads in Carmel deteriorate further, chip sealing won't do the job. Roads will have to be replaced or repaved.

But back to our specific situation on Carmelo. On July 18, more than 40 residents met with city officials — on short notice — and heard that the $72,500 never was our money. Most if not all of the people there were not satisfied; lots of letters have been sent to city hall on this matter.

It is the responsibility of the City of Carmel to treat the residents and property owners of Carmelo Street fairly and reasonably — by restoring what was promised in the original contract. Pebble Beach, not the City of Carmel, paid the freight.

Congress must ignore powerful tobacco lobby and pass cigarette tax

IF YOU think the federal government is dragging its feet stemming the sale of tobacco, just think what would happen if it were a proposed new product. Washington would then seem downright delinquent.

Consider the scenario: Several big companies find they can profitably market large quantities of a new product. While testing indicates the product has addictive qualities and could cause a number of diseases, the companies say proof of harmful side-effects is inconclusive and, besides, its sale would create thousands of jobs domestically and overseas.

What would the Food and Drug Administration do? Prevent it from ever reaching the marketplace, of course. There would be little debate in the FDA, or in the halls of Congress for that matter, that a product with the potential of giving millions cancer should ever be sold.

Aside from humanitarian concerns, the thought of spending millions or even billions on health care costs associated with caring for the sick would make it unfeasible in the extreme. Logic would dictate that the nation should not be made to suffer needlessly for such a government decision run amuck.

Since 1964, when the Surgeon General first reported that smoking was harmful, the country has tragically flipped the health care bill for the 10 million who have died from smoking-related illnesses. It is estimated, in fact, that smokers add approximately $100 billion annually to the country's health bill, with thousands, including 3,000 children, starting the habit each and every day.

Proponents of smoking, led by the big tobacco companies, argue that the practice should be a matter of choice — that the non-smoking public is conducting a witch hunt that will lead not only to the outright banning of tobacco and cigarettes, but a slippery slope which will entrap any number of other goods.

The tobacco companies want you to believe that, somehow, by eliminating a deadly product from the marketplace, it will then be easy to attack other goods, which, when used excessively, can be hazardous to your health.

On Capitol Hill, where smoking has been restricted for some time now, the House of Representatives is currently considering four bills I have co-sponsored that would restrict smoking and is examining proposals that would place up to a $2 tax on every pack of cigarettes to reduce use and help finance health care reform.

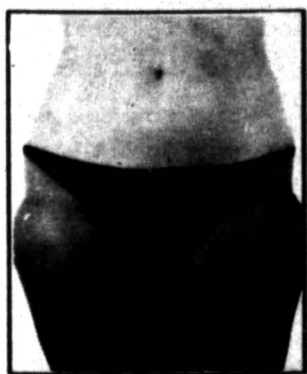

Three weeks ago, FDA Commissioner David Kessler testified before a Congressional committee that at least one tobacco company secretly engineered the tobacco it grew to have at least twice the normal amount of nicotine. If Kessler can prove that Brown & Williamson intentionally regulates nicotine levels in order to keep smokers hooked, nicotine could be regulated as a drug.

Still, this feat could only be accomplished if Washington displays something that has been in especially short supply here when it comes to the tobacco debate: moral will.

In order to do what should have been done 30 years ago, the federal government will have to ignore the interests of the tobacco-producing states and the powerful tobacco lobby and do what is right.

Ben Heller was tireless fighter for human rights

tional and the American Civil Liberties Union.

"He had a passion for justice, a conviction that was behind all of his efforts," said Richard Criley, a Carmel Highlands resident and longtime friend.

It was Criley who, in 1987, presented Heller with the American Civil Liberties Union's Ralph Atkinson Liberties Award.

Rosemary Matson, another friend and the 1984 recipient of the award, described Heller as "the kind of person who could call and expect great comfort...You could be feeling angry and helpless over some issue, but he could help you move on. He always inspired action."

His survivors

Heller's wife of 44 years, Doris, lives in a nursing home in Monterey. The couple had no children; Heller is survived by sister Minnie Cofman of Colorado Springs, Colo., two nephews and a niece.

A memorial service will be held today at 4 p.m. at the Unitarian Universalist Church of the Monterey Peninsula, 490 Aguajito Road, Carmel.

"Ben wasn't a humanist in theory, but in practice," said J.S. Holliday, a Carmel resident who will be one of the speakers at Heller's memorial service. "Not only was he intellectually very alert and well-informed, he lived his ideals."

Heller's name is rarely uttered without the word "doctor" preceding it.

He earned a doctorate in internal medicine at the University of Minnesota in 1941, whose faculty he would eventually join. He also taught at Northwestern University, University of Oklahoma and University of Arkansas.

It was at the latter when, during the 1950s, Heller was compelled to resign, under mounting pressure from the university concerning his activities with the NAACP, of which he was a member. He served on the civil rights group's Sit-In Advisory Committee.

During the next decade, he fought for an end to the Vietnam War and was active in Democratic Party politics, serving as a state chairman for the election of Eugene McCarthy. He was a delegate to the 1968 Democratic Party Convention in Chicago.

Ben and Doris Heller retired in Carmel in 1974, but Dr. Heller shortly assumed two executive positions — with the Native American Health Center in San Francisco and the United Farmworkers Clinic in Salinas.

In addition, Heller kept up his involvement with the ACLU, serving on the local board from 1977 to 1985. He served on the complaint line and was ACLU representative on the Affirmative Action Committee of Monterey Peninsula College.

Major contributor

"Ben Heller contributed to all liberal causes," explained Jane Mayer, who was a friend along with her husband Milton, who died in 1986.

Heller took interest in local affairs as well. For example, he was a longtime board member of the Carmel Residents Association.

"In whatever endeavor the CRA did,

Ben could always be found in front of the post office," said Beth Wright, the group's past president.

Heller was also active in Salvadoran Medical Relief, the Nuclear Weapons Freeze, the Center for Community Advocacy, the Monterey Institute for Research in Astronomy and the Chamber Music Society.

Of Heller's intellect, Carmel Mayor

Ken White said: "Anytime you talked with him, you had to be on your toes. He challenged you with words and you had to use the depth of your intelligence to face him. I didn't always agree with him, but he was a good public speaker. And you could believe that, if there was any issue that could affect Carmel, he'd be right there."

PB Co. officials say approval for their project still a long way off

"Our construction materials are only coming from down the 17-Mile Drive and up to Del Cervo," Lohr noted. "We don't pass in front of any residences and we are trying to concentrate as much of our activity into this two and a half month period — from early July to late September — so that any noise during the land development is over in a brief period as possible."

According to Lohr, approximately 400 trees have been cleared thus far, though many were already dead or dying from poor soil and lack of water.

Lohr said he hopes to begin building on some of the lots by the end of this year.

Meanwhile, Mark Stilwell, vice president of real estate and general counsel for the Pebble Beach Co., maintains approval for the 350-lot subdivision and new golf course — dubbed the "Forest Course at Pebble Beach" — is still a long way from being approved.

Stilwell said part of the confusion may have been generated by the location of the Macomber Estates subdivision, which is "right across the street from the proposed golf course."

"There will be many, many public hearings before we have any construction equipment out there," Stilwell added. "We are still more than a year away at best, even if things go smoothly."

GARLIC LOVERS will not want to miss the 16th annual Gilroy Garlic Festival Friday, Saturday and Sunday at Christmas Hill Park in Gilroy.

The self-titled "Garlic Capital of the World," Gilroy has celebrated the versatile bulb every year since 1979.

Two of the world's four largest garlic dehydrators are in Gilroy, and California produces 90 percent of the United States' garlic, most of which is grown in Gilroy or within at 90-mile radius of Gilroy.

Tons of garlic-laced delicacies will abound, including garlic-basted grilled sirloin, calamari, giant stuffed mushrooms, pasta con pesto, scampi, stir-fried regional vegetables, garlic bread, garlic ice cream and garlic candy.

Arts and crafts like photography, ceramics, leather, wood, stained glass, paintings and jewelry will also be on display. Proceeds from all monies made at the festival will be donated to local non-profit organizations.

To accompany all the food tasting that will be going on, continuous musical entertainment takes place on four stages—jazz, big band, reggae, 50s/60s era rock 'n roll, and country western.

For the kids, there is a children's area with special food and entertainment, game booths, facepainting, marionettes, magicians, hands-on crafts, souvenirs and a "no garlic" food booth.

Special events will also take place. On Saturday there will be a garlic cook-off and a 10K/5K Walk/Run. The 10K run begins at 8 a.m. and the 5K at 8:15 a.m. Garlic-braiding demonstrations will take place daily.

Further information can be obtained by calling the Gilroy Garlic Festival office at 842-1625.

Japanese traditions, culture celebrated at annual Obon Festival

Although a yearly tradition since 1948, the Obon Festival has only been held at the temple once before: last year. Organizers chose to hold the festival at the temple again this year because they feel the temple grounds allow people to gain a better understanding of the festival's meaning.

At 1 p.m. the Monterey Bonsai Club will display about 100 bonsai trees. Some of these trees are more than 150 years old and some are only three inches tall.

The Ohara School will showcase the art of Japanese flower arranging at 2:30 p.m. At 4 p.m. there will be a demonstration of the classical Japanese dance, Fujima Misuzu-Kai, and Japanese songs will be sung by the ■ Mission Basilica Concert always a magical evening.

By LYN BRONSON

THE FOUNDERS' Memorial Concert at the Carmel Mission Basilica is always one of the highlights of the Carmel Bach Festival and this season's concert titled "The Splendors of Dresden" was no exception. Part of the evening's magic is always the special ambiance of the Carmel Mission Basilica plus the dramatic trappings of a candlelit setting with robed figures silently walking down the aisle during the opening and closing processions bearing candles and heraldic flags. During these processions the austere Gregorian chants and lovely handbell playing add even more mystery to the atmosphere.

The Mission concert transports the listener back several centuries in time and is truly a magical evening. It is, of course, a major logistical triumph since the event requires the careful coordination of soloists, members of the festival orchestra and the chorale, plus some very sophisticated lighting and communications equipment.

THE CARMEL Bach Festival Thursday evening concert, titled "Travels with Charley," was a fascinating evening which was partly theater and partly a musical journey through the 18th century. Hostess for this adventure was the Bach Festival concert master, Elizabeth Wallfisch, who narrated during the evening and also played the violin with cellist Douglas McNames, harpsichordist Paul Nicholson and soprano Rosa Lamoreaux.

The thread which held this evening together was a series of selected readings by Ms. Wallfisch from the journal of Londoner Charles Burney, who in 1770 made an extended trip to Europe and later published his journal, Music, Men and Manners in France and Italy. A sophisticate in many areas, Mr. Burney was a keen observer of the contemporary music of his day and his perceptive insights are as refreshing today as they were two hundred years ago.

See it ain't so

"YOU LOOK like a flashy blonde," my Significant Other recently declared after taking a hard look at the mug shot that adorns this column.

"That's OK," I said. "When my column ran in that other paper, people told me I looked 'smug.' I'll settle for flashy."

This conversation, and a box of chocolates, brought to mind a woman whose "mug shot" is familiar to all, but I'd be willing to bet that none of us could pick her out of a lineup. Of course, a lineup is not where one would expect to find Mary See.

I'm speaking, of course, of the woman who brought us See's Candies. At least, that's what the See's company would have us believe — that the little grandmotherly creature pictured on every box was the one who stood over a cauldron of bubbling milk chocolate and lovingly turned it into delicious confections.

Perfect ginger snaps

I certainly believed it when I was a kid. Maybe because I had a dear gray-haired grandmother myself who made and bottled her own root beer and produced absolutely symmetrical ginger snaps with perfect rick-rack edges.

(My grandmother's name was Erie Mae, named after one of the Great Lakes. It was her dearest wish that I be named Erie also, but my mother resisted, and for that I am eternally grateful.)

(My journalism teacher once said never to use parentheses because "if it's worth saying, it's worth saying in the regular text," but I just thought you'd like to know, even though Grandma's name really has nothing to do with mug shots or chocolate candy.)

Well, back to Mary See, whose picture in my house sometimes meant a treat, sometimes not. On those rare occasions when my mother received a box of candy, she promptly hid it, usually way in the back of the buffet's top drawer, sometimes in her stocking drawer. Naturally, with four kids in the house, it made sense for her to not pass the box around, but we all knew where to find it, if only just to sniff and look. Mama had a kind nature, but you wouldn't want to steal her chocolates, if you know what I mean.

No need to buy it

Growing up meant that I could buy a box of See's any time I wanted to, but I rarely did. A shrink might say I was "conflicted," that chocolates were a guilty pleasure. Sneaking into my mother's bureau to perhaps bite off the corner of a vanilla cream was a lot more satisfying than walking into a store and simply buying the stuff.

For years the See's company packed their goodies with a photograph enclosed of the delicious ingredients — nuts, cherries, caramel — a feast for the eyes, as if the salivary glands needed any encouragement.

Imagine, then, my consternation at finally cashing in my last gift certificate left over from Christmas, and finding inside a box of See's "nuts and chews" a "nutritional statement." Aaarrrghhhh, as Charlie Brown would say.

Bear with me as I quote:

"Serving size: 3 Pieces."

This in itself is ridiculous. As any chocolate lover will tell you, there is no well-defined serving size. The best indication that you've had enough is a stomach ache.

"Calories 240."

Actually, this was pretty good news. I'd always imagined a far higher calorie count. Now, given the choice, I'll have three pieces of candy instead of a piece of pie or cake for dessert.

"Total fat 16 grams...25 percent of daily value."

Oh, now they give you the bad news. You've just eaten one-fourth of your fat requirement, which leaves very little room for mayonnaise, bacon or a hamburger later on.

The statement goes on to cite vitamins, calcium, sodium, cholesterol, saturated fat, protein and fiber, followed by strings of baffling numbers and percentages.

Government out of control

I didn't mind when the government demanded they put this information on salad dressings or canned string beans, but they've gone too far. Mary See must be spinning in her grave.

God didn't intend for us to know what food value is in candy. When I stopped in at the mama-and-papa store across the street from my grade school and bought a licorice whip or one of those little wax bottles with colored liquid in it, old Mr. Scabucci didn't ask if my lunch-box contained a well-balanced meal. He just smiled and took my pennies.

When movie-goers line up at the refreshment stand for a barrel of popcorn and a half-gallon of Coke, they really don't want to know if it's good for them. Most of them are counting on it to be bad. Why do you think they eat it in the dark!

I've probably ruined your day, and believe me, I've searched for a bright spot in all this nutritional information. I thought I'd found one when I read that soft-center chocolates have only 170 calories in a serving, compared to nuts and chews which have 240, but they zinged us again. The "serving size" for soft centers is only two pieces.

Oh well, another example of what the Significant Other always tells me: "Figures lie, and liars figure." Mary See would never have lied to me.

Beverly Borgman welcomes your letters, comments — and any spare boxes of chocolate — at P.O. Box 4402, Carmel, CA 93921-4402.

Humor adds spice to Tuesday evening Festival concert

■ Review: Bruno Weil adds comic relief to challenging, varied musical program.

By LYN BRONSON

IT MAY have been foggy and gloomy outside, but inside Sunset Center theater the Carmel Bach Festival orchestra and chorale under the direction of maestro Bruno Weil continued to bring to the audience its own special brand of musical sunshine.

Tuesday evening's amusing fare of a sparkling Haydn Symphony and a delicious Mozart concerto were topped off at the end by a solid performance of a Haydn Mass. If you were inclined to ask where's the Bach, well, there are plenty of other evenings devoted to the cantor from Leipzig, and this was simply an evening to savor and enjoy quite on its own merits.

Symphony lovely yet comical

During the first twenty seconds of the Haydn Symphony No. 93 in D Major we knew we were in for something very special. The impeccable precision of the strings was matched by the subtle quality of the winds. There was a magic moment when the horn entered softly and executed a beautifully shaped phrase—no mean feat when you realize how difficult it is to play a pianissimo horn entrance. The first movement was light and frothy and while nothing particularly spectacular happens in the music, it was a pleasant journey deftly executed.

The second movement was skillfully shaped and articulated. It contained a lovely example of Haydn's sense of humor as the strings executed a long passage becoming softer and softer so that we were straining to hear. Then, suddenly the bassoon erupted with a loud rude noise. The moment was so effective that Maestro Weil halted the orchestra, turned to the audience and said that this humorous moment was so deliciously effective that we ought to hear it again, and it was even better the second time.

The symphony concluded with a schmaltzy Menuetto with lots of Germanic "oom pahs" and a sparkling finale full of witty repartee between the instruments. This was orchestral playing on a very high level—cleanly articulated with faultless intonation and full of energy and charm.

Pianist Fialkowska featured

The Mozart Concerto in G Major, K. 453 is one of Mozart's most charming works. The first time listener is always struck with the way Mozart presents, at the beginning of the first movement, some utterly conventional, almost banal themes in a major key, and then occasionally without any warning slips into wild departures through a series of harmonic progressions in minor keys, luring us into some surprising and often disturbing areas. At the end of the development section after one of the most glorious sequences of modulations Mozart ever created, the tonality goes from B Major to the remote C Minor in four measures.

Pianist Janina Fialkowska, after a triumphant solo recital the previous evening, returned to the stage as soloist in the concerto. She proved to be as nimble as ever and equal to any challenge presented by Mozart.

If there was any fault with the performance it was as a result of Fialkowska's fantastic skill as a pianist which led her to such speedy tempos that she was at times ahead of the orchestra. Since the fast tempos in all three movements imparted a sense of flippancy to the work, it did not make quite the effect it could have, and at its conclusion it didn't receive the thunderous (and well-deserved) spontaneous standing ovation she had received after her performance of the previous evening.

However, along the way there were many glorious moments as Fialkowska's sensitive playing, especially in the slow movement, demonstrated what a fine musician she is. Incidentally, the woodwind playing in the slow movement was one of the highlights of the evening.

The concluding work, Haydn's

Heligmesse, pulled out all the stops with full orchestra, the Festival Chorale and soloists for the evening, sopranos Shari Saunders and Rosa Lamoreaux, mezzo Catherine Robbins, tenor David Gordon and baritone Daniel Lichti. Although the soloists played relatively minor roles in the mass, they nevertheless added much grace and substance to the proceedings.

The Tuesday evening concert will repeat this Tuesday at 8 p.m. Further information or tickets may be obtained by calling 624-1521.

14th annual Dickens Universe convenes in Santa Cruz

By BETH PENNEY

EVERY SUMMER for the past 13 years, the Mediterranean-style buildings of Kresge College on the University of California, Santa Cruz campus, nestled in the morning fog and afternoon sun under the California redwoods, have provided a rare backdrop for one of the world's most prestigious scholarly conferences on Victorian England's Charles Dickens.

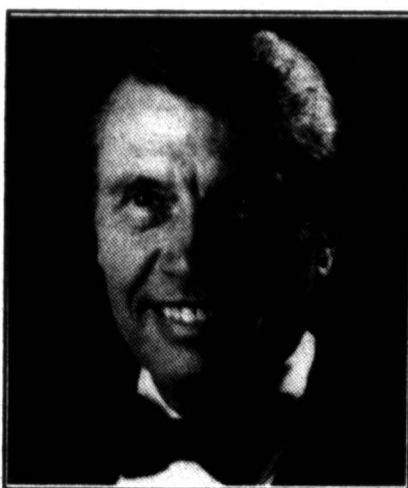

The Dickens Project, which hosts the week-long Dickens Universe, is based at UCSC's Kresge College and is headed by Professor John Jordan. Founded in 1981, the Project boasts a faculty that includes professors and scholars from all over the world, many of whom make the trip to Santa Cruz a yearly affair.

Each summer, the conference focuses on one of Dickens's works, and the scheduled lectures and events reflect the theme of that work. This year's novel is Hard Times, Dickens's bleak story of the effect of the Industrial Revolution on England's working class.

The Dickens Universe, which opens July 31 and runs through Aug. 5, does not attract pedagogues alone. Attendees include many secondary- and community college-level English teachers, but the conference has always billed itself as being open to anyone. "The only prerequisite is a fondness for reading Dickens and talking about his work," reads the brochure.

DICK NEWTON

Also, over the past several years, the event has added a number of activities geared toward the general public, hoping to draw more and more people to this gathering of some of the world's most acclaimed Dickens scholars.

The week's events include afternoon teas, lectures and readings, after-dinner sherry hours (or, as the Project calls them, "post-prandial potations"), a Victorian-dress dessert party on Friday evening, a book fair, a raffle of a 30-volume set of Dickens's works, souvenir sales, and a circus performance (which ties in with the basic human need for entertainment, one of the themes of Hard Times).

In addition, the Universe welcomes for the first time magician Dick Newton of San Rafael, who, after extensive research, has put together a series of magic acts that Dickens himself performed. Also joining the group is David Springhorn of the Pasadena Pickwick Club, who will bring one of Dickens' most-loved characters, Mr. Pickwick, to life during the week.

Northern California is the home of three of the state's four chartered Dickens Fellowships (Monterey Peninsula, San Francisco, and Palo Alto—the fourth is in Los Angeles), and the Dickens Universe provides an opportunity for Fellowship members to meet, formally and informally, with Fellowship representatives from headquarters in London. Members of Fellowships in other cities, including New York and Chicago, also attend the Universe regularly.

Universe attendees can choose to stay on campus at Kresge College during the week and take their meals in one of the University's cafeterias; many people in the Monterey Bay area drive to and from the campus each day. A companion in-

Historical, biographical contexts of Dickens' 'Hard Times' to be discussed at Universe

THE FULL title of Charles Dickens' 12th novel Hard Times, his shortest but possibly his most powerful, is as applicable now as it was when the book was published 140 years ago.

Many readers of Dickens like to point out which social ill he attacked in each of his novels; even those who are not ardent fans know that Oliver Twist dealt with conditions in England's orphanages and that David Copperfield portrayed the mistreatment of children in London's factories.

Hard Times takes the blacking-warehouse incident in David Copperfield several steps farther, telling the story of the men and women who were virtually enslaved by the Industrial Revolution that was supposed to improve their quality of life.

Alongside the grim existence of the millworkers, Dickens draws in Hard Times a portrait of the so-called privileged families of the people who run the mills.

This summer, the Dickens Universe at UC Santa Cruz will examine Charles Dickens's Hard Times as a novel, as well as in its historical and biographical context.

terdisciplinary conference, this year on "Victorian Work," will be held Thursday, Aug. 4, through Sunday, Aug. 7.

This year, for the first time, Wednesday afternoon, Aug. 3 has been made open to the public who cannot attend the entire week. Wednesday afternoon activities will include the Victorian Tea, Professor Philip Collins' reading of selections from A Christmas Carol, a lecture on "19th Century Entertainment," and a lecture on "Joseph Paxton's Water Lily." The cost for attending Wednesday afternoon is $15.

More information may be obtained by calling the Dickens Project Office at 459-2103.

The Red Lion Tavern is an authentic English Pub located in the heart of Carmel. A local favorite for 30 years, visitors to Carmel will also find them-selves welcomed as old friends. Warm, friendly, congenial. Reasonable prices in an informal decor. Non-smoking dining room.

Mission Basilica concert focuses on composers from Dresden.

Bruce Lamott continues to direct the Mission Concert each season and we can assume that he has had a major role in planning the focus of the event as well as the composers selected. Bach ends up taking a back seat for this concert, because among the diverse sampling of composers representing the rich musical heritage of the great city of Dresden selected for the program Antonio Lotti's selections emerged as the most vital and interesting works of the evening.

Lotti's Crucifixus with its dissonant suspensions always makes a powerful effect on any audience and so it did on this occasion. Director Lamott's control of the chorale was superb, and after the dramatic climax the carefully controlled decrescendo at the end was incredibly moving. I would have loved to have heard the performance repeated right on the spot.

The other major work by Lotti was the Gloria from the Missa Sapientiae featuring sopranos Gillian Hoffman and Marie Hodgson, alto Kathie Freeman, tenor Donald Krehbiel, and bass Donald Wilkinson. This was a super performance with everything falling neatly into place. The woodwinds (the program notes tell us that Zelenka was responsible for their addition to the score), oboist Edward Benyas and flutist Robin Carlson provided a delightful obligato during several sections of this Gloria.

Lotti's harmonic language takes some beautiful twists and turns (created, of course, by moving voices) especially in the Qui tollis and Qui sedes. The lovely suspensions in the Qui tollis made a more powerful impression and the beautiful repartee between the soprano and the woodwinds in the Domine Deus, Rex coelestis was also dramatic and effective.

In Lobe den Herren, meine Seele by Heinrich Schutz, tenor Benjamin Reckdahl gave an impressive performance as did the vocal quartet of soprano Martha Cowan, countertenor George Stern, tenor Jody Colightly and bass Mark Beasom. There were also some lively imitative repartee between the soloists and the orchestra.

The Lamentation II for Easter Eve by Jan Zelenka failed to get off the ground despite some lovely woodwind playing, but the Motet, Lobet den Herrn, alle Heiden, by J. S. Bach which followed gave a refreshing uplift to the program. Despite a few moments of ragged ensemble, the chorus sounded magnificent in this beautifully effective work.

Tenor Kim Childs was one of the pleasures of the evening in the aria, A Dio ritornate, lasciate l'errore by Adolf Hasse. His singing has enormous charm and his elegantly shaped phrases were a delight for the ear. He exhibits a beautiful control of dynamic and expressive shading and his breath control is equal to the longest melisma, of which there were several.

The Concerto in G Major by Johann David Heinichen showcased the solid playing of violinist Cynthia Roberts who played with striking finesse. The flute obligato by Robin Carlson and Kim Reighley was outstanding as was the lovely playing by oboists Edward Benyas and Monica Johnson. Speaking of woodwind playing, there was a nice duet for flutes in the Heinichen Pastorale for Christmas Eve.

Winding up the evening's program was a stirring performance of the chorus

Preisest dein Glucke, gesegnetes Sachsen from the Cantata, BWV 215 by J. S. Bach, and the orchestral Sinfonia Ritornello from the same Cantata which was used in the recessional.

The Mission concerts never lose their ability to move audiences. Kudos to everyone who helped make it such a success.

The Founders' Memorial Concert took place July 20 and 27. It will be repeated Wednesday night. Further information or tickets can be obtained by calling 624-1521.

Jazz Tides

By JOHN DETROW

Local jazz composers invited to place 'perusal scores' with busy American Music Center

LOCAL JAZZ composers have been invited to place perusal scores with the American Music Center Jazz Expansion Project in New York City.

As part of its new and long-term project, AMC hired jazz writer Eugene Holley Jr. to facilitate deposit of jazz materials and answer information requests.

He invites interested parties from this area to call him at (212) 366-5260 and iron out details.

AMC seeks to obtain more than 2,500 jazz scores and recordings and "make them more accessible to performers, presenters, researchers and radio stations across the country," Holley says.

For more than half a century, AMC has promoted American contemporary music through library and information services, membership services, grants administration and advocacy. "These activities result in more than 1,000 performances each year," Holley tells the readers of this column.

The Jazz Expansion Project is underwritten by the Lila Wallace Fund.

This year, Holley finishes, AMC also is launching a national computer network for information about American contemporary music.

(Don't forget that Club Viva in downtown Monterey has been extremely active with a Songwriters Search.

Call Ice House Recording Studios at 646-1415 for full information.)

Much variety

The old saying equates variety with spiciness. That makes the current music scene one spicy stew:

- The Sunday afternoon series at Seaside's Laguna Grande Park continues this week with Reggae Week. Playing that free show will be Jonah and the Whalewatchers plus Maaka. Everything kicks off at 1 p.m.

Event sponsors: City of Seaside, Monterey Bay Blues Festival, Bank of America, KWAV Radio. Take the family and a picnic basket.

- Del Monte Center's no-cost Friday evening series will bring forth flutist Kenny Stahl and friends tomorrow. Kenny knows a lot about general merriment and how to swing.

From 5 until 7 p.m. And at the courtyard fountain.

- The powerful blues guitarist Coco Montoya will work out tonight at Doc Ricketts' Lab near Cannery Row.

Rather surprisingly, the cover is only $5 per. Starts at 9 p.m.

- On Saturday night, the trio fronted by bassist Buddy Jones will play Los Laureles Lodge in Carmel Valley. With Buddy: master flugelhornist Jackie Coon and killer guitarist Bruce Forman from San Francisco and the Monterey Jazz Festival house band.

No cover; no minimum. The same unit will work there the evenings of Aug. 6, 12, 20, 27.

- Great show coming up Monday night at Kuumbwa Jazz Center of Santa Cruz. You can catch Peter Apfelbaum and his Hieroglyphics Ensemble with jazz trumpet innovator Don Cherry guesting.

Eight o'clock kick-off; $13 advance (Cymbaline Records in downtown Monterey) or $15 at the door.

Multi-instrumentalist Peter is a young genius who mixes genres and attracts such excellent sidemen as Peck Allmond, Norbert Stachel, Bo Freeman. Cherry's work with Ornette Coleman made folks listen in different ways.

Friday night — vocalist Ann Whittington with a new backup group and fresh material. It's $5 per at the door only.

Upcoming — Nnenna Freelon (Aug. 8), James Moody (Aug. 15), Turtle Island String Quartet (Aug. 22), young trumpet star Rebecca Coupe Franks (Aug. 29).

- Saxist Roger Eddy's gang will play from 2:30 until 4:30 Sunday afternoon at Crossroads Shopping Center. Freebie.

Roger also appears from 5 to 7 p.m. Wednesdays on the patio of Tarpy's Roadhouse.

- Kim Angelis calls her approach "California Gypsy Violin." She'll be spotlighted on Thursday evening, Aug. 11, at Monterey Public Library. Ticketing and other information: 646-3949.

- The Wharfside on Monterey's old wharf features jazz guitarist Joseph Lucido's trio on Friday evenings. The blues jam happens on Wednesday nights. No cover charges.

- Cibo's in downtown Monterey has live music every night but Monday. Wide variety (blues, fusion, world beat) without cover charges. Call 649-8151.

- Big Sur's River Inn has Papa Jake Stock and those Abalone Stompers on Sunday afternoon.

Outside the region

- The Eddie Moore Festival takes its name from the great drummer who suffered a fatal heart attack while on the bandstand at Yoshi's near the Oakland-Berkeley line.

The 1994 fest will be held Aug. 1-7 at that same venue. Lineup includes: trombonist Julian Priester fronting two groups, duo of Mal Waldron and Steve Lacy, Billy Hart Sextet, John Handy's famed 1965 Monterey Jazz Festival unit in a reunion (Michael White, Don Thompson, Jerry Hahn, Terry Clarke), Horace Tapscott Orchestra featuring saxist Arthur Blythe, others.

Produced by the grass roots Jazz in Flight. Info: (510) 601-7715.

- Woodside's Filoli Mansion has a top drawer jazz series. Next date — trad jazz with the Jim Cullum Band on Saturday afternoon. Call (415) 364-8300. (And give yourself plenty of time to wander in the wide, beautiful gardens.)

- Concord Records has released an extremely worthwhile session. It's pianist Marian McPartland playing the music of Mary Lou Williams (CCD-4605).

THIS STRIKING shot is part of jazz photographer Cole Thompson's current exhibit at Kuumbwa Center of Santa Cruz. During last year's Monterey Jazz Festival, Cole went close to the arena stage and caught bassist Milt Hinton and New Orleans guitarist Danny Barker (reflected on the piano's surface). The octogenarian artists brought down the house. Danny died just a few months later.

Glossy 'Shadow' boasts style, but lacks substance

■ Rest of cast shines more than Baldwin in this shallow remake

By NORA WHITWORTH

TWO BULLETS collide in midair. They crumple and fall to the ground. Our hero and villain stop and stare at each other in amazement — then continue their gunfight.

This scene is an example of how absurd and cartoonish The Shadow tends to be. Without an exciting plot or interesting characters, its constant attempt at light-hearted goofiness falls flat on its face.

Filled with one-liners as well as run-of-the-mill action scenes, the movie is more comedy than adventure. However, it strives to be both. The beginning has some creepy scenes, but it loses something with time: Action, plot and dialogue only become dumber.

Despite funny lines here and there, The Shadow is propped up by its use of special effects. The visual style is slick and glamorous, but that can't save the movie from its own shortcomings.

The plot begins with our hero Lamont Cranston (Alec Baldwin) as an evil drug lord in Tibet. Through a mysterious chain of events that this writer won't give away to the uninitiated, Cranston acquires the ability to cloud minds of men, so only his shadow is seen as he fights crime.

PENELOPE ANN Miller plays opposite Alec Baldwin and provides a few of the most refreshing moments.

Cranston returns to New York City and begins his crusade. He meets Margo Lane (Penelope Ann Miller), with whom he shares an immediate connection. And no surprise — it leads to romance.

Trouble starts when Shiwan Kahn (John Lone)

...if Lamont (Baldwin) came across as evil, such unlikely scenarios could be overlooked. Instead he looks like he is having a bad hair day.

shows up in New York City with a plan to rule the world. From here on in it's the usual struggle between good and evil.

Do we expect a movie about the exploits of a superhero to be realistic? Of course not. But disbelief in this one is stretched to a ridiculous point.

How did this American become a powerful drug lord in Tibet? Who cares. But if Lamont came across as evil, such unlikely scenarios could be overlooked. Instead Baldwin looks like he is having a bad hair day.

The strong supporting cast includes Jonathan Winters and Tim Curry. Jonathan Winters provides comic relief as Lamont's uncle who always complains about Lamont's tardiness. Miller plays her role with intelligence and never loses her composure. She is like a breath of fresh air in the film.

Unfortunately, Tim Curry, who plays Reinhardt Lanes' sleazy assistant, is given nothing to do. To see what a funny actor Curry can be, go rent Home Alone 2.

Alec Baldwin and John Lone are frustratingly one-dimensional. Baldwin never shows the inner turmoil that we would expect from a reformed tyrant. Lone has his sinister moments, but then he lapses into the light-hearted framework of the movie, reducing any sense of conflict between him and Lamont.

Instead of choosing human conflicts, director Russell Mulcahy went for action and comedy. The special effects are impressive (like the knife with its own personality, flying through the air and taunting its victims).

Otherwise, this film is unlikely to start any Shadowmania. In fact, it is doubtful it will even create much of a new audience for an old story.

Vocalists' techniques, acting skills shine in opera 'Xerxes'

oratorio form which swept away all else before it. While Handel's operas have been neglected ever since, there is a wealth of music in them lost in the rejection of Baroque stage plots and musical forms. Yet, when done as imaginatively and sensibly as Xerxes just has been mounted in Carmel's Sunset Theater, one can be sure they would be a welcome addition to the opera repertoire.

The presentation was described as a concert performance, but Stage Director Albert Takazaukas was a skillful traffic organizer and created an active pattern of appropriate entrances and exits. His singers showed their emotions with both facial and body language. He got around the gender confusion by costuming the men (who were sung by women) in tuxedos; the real ladies wore dresses and the one lady disguised as a man wore a tuxedo. Such so-called "pants roles" are a familiar enough operatic convention to audiences even today. Besides, the super titles were an indispensable help for comprehension.

However, there was good reason for confusion with this typical Baroque opera-seria plot which, before it finished, had become virtually incoherent. There are a pair of noble lovers (Arsamene and Romilda) who are being torn asunder by one's brother (Xerxes) and the other's sister (Atalanta).

Singers impressive in Xerxes

Singing the part of King Xerxes, Catherine Robbin was an artist of large dimensions. Her voice is large and warm and as the major protagonist, she was a tower of strength. There are few other roles which demand such long lasting, difficult and involved musical delivery as this one.

Rosa Lamoreaux was the lovely and appealing wronged heroine Romilda. She too had much fine and demanding music to traverse and did so with ease and polish. Her underhanded and scheming, though delightfully charming sister Atalanta, was a role made to order for the talents of Shari Saunders who even managed to entice a kiss from the Maestro.

As Xerxes' wronged brother Arsamene, Mika Shigematsu was a fervent and fine sounding vocalist. His (her) many arias and dramatic scenes were strongly projected. Linda Childs as Amastre, Xerxes' forgotten fiancée, had a difficult role and equally difficult music. She created much nobility in the part.

In a role all too brief to permit a display of his far ranging comic talents and rich vocalism, bass Daniel Lichti was outstanding as the servant Elviro whose bumbling was the hinge of the plot. One wished to see and hear far more of him. To round out the cast, bass

Setting the record straight

IN LAST week's issue of The Carmel Pine Cone, we carried three reviews of Bach Festival concerts by Nathalie Plotkin, our long-time classical music critic.

Due to an editor's error, however, we mistakenly confused Bach and Shostakovich in a paragraph talking about Shostakovich's "Chamber Symphony in C Minor." Bach's name was mistakenly inserted in two places where our reviewer had referred to "the composer" — Shostakovich.

Because Ms. Plotkin has been called on these errors, we wanted our readers to know her trusty staff will take credit for this goof! We apologize to Ms. Plotkin and our readers for any confusion it may have created.

Burr Phillips, father of Romilda and Atalanta, was a fine Ariodate. His music was virtuosic and he encompassed it very ably. The Chorale were a full and resonant soldiers chorus.

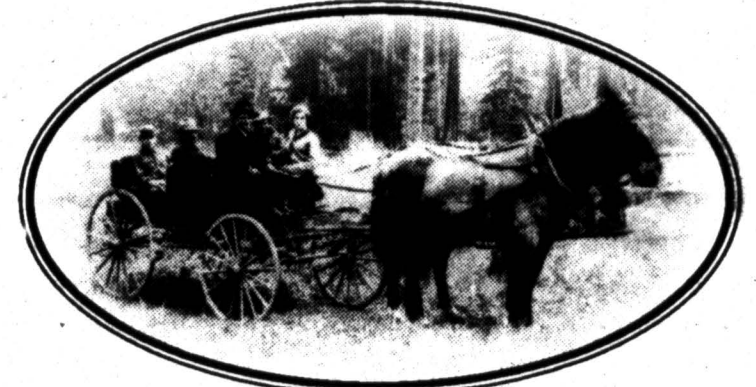

The music was a revelation. An unending glorious flow of ear filling, beguiling melodies, it was remarkably varied and captivating. To an audience who certainly had never heard any of it before except the "Largo," there was reason for gratitude at being offered the chance to be able to enjoy such a rare treat. I certainly feel enriched by it.

Recommendation: There are performances scheduled for this Friday and Friday, Aug. 5. Here is a great opportunity to widen your musical horizons. Try to get tickets, but hurry.

Nathalie Plotkin attended 'Xerxes' on its opening night, July 22. The opera will be repeated Friday and Friday Aug. 5 at 8 p.m. Further information or tickets can be obtained by calling 624-1521.

Golf Tips On... SAND WEDGE

From Doug at Sweetshot Golf & Tennis

The family of sand wedges includes the "sand wedge," "sand club club," the #11 iron, and "niblick." In most cases the only differences are in the terminology. Sand wedges are available in an infinite number of shapes and many combinations of specifications all of which could be correctly called any on of the names mentioned except for the niblick. One of the main problems that golfers faced in the pre-1930's era was that sand wedges were not invented yet. Thus, the trusty niblick was used to many golfers' frustration because it had a very narrow sole width and sharp leading edge which caused digging. The skill level required to extract a ball from sand with the niblick was for greater than it was with the wider bounce sole type sand wedge first invented by Gene Sarazen in the 1940's and manufactured by the Wilson Sporting Goods Co. Many golfers today do not have a sand wedge in their set. Regardless of golfing proficiency, a sand wedge will prove to be a valuable asset to any player. In particular, a sand wedge can make most sand shots much easier and particularly so if the golfer understands how a sand wedge works.

Soviet art exhibit premieres Saturday at Karges

"STYLE OF a Nation: Soviet Socialist Realist Paintings of the Mid-Twentieth Century," a new exhibition, will premiere with an opening reception from 4 to 8 p.m. Saturday at William A. Karges Fine Art, 5th and Dolores in Carmel.

The exhibition, which runs through Sept. 5, features paintings from the 1950s and 60s including vibrantly colored portraits, landscapes and scenes depicting Soviet life.

Drawn from a body of work previously ignored by Western critics who dismissed it because of its association with the Stalin regime, the exhibition will provide a view of the art that dominated Soviet painting for decades. The work did not begin to emerge in the West until the early to mid-1980s.

When Lenin came to power in 1917 he brought with him a disdain for the avant garde and a deep belief that art belonged to the "great working masses." This created the foundation for Socialist Realism art which was officially sanctioned by the Communist Party in 1934. A strong element of propaganda was incorporated into Socialist Realism art. Even during the "thaw" that followed Stalin's death in 1953, the more benevolent Khrushchev declared, "For an artist who faithfully serves his people, the question does not arise whether he is free or not in his creative work. Faithfully to represent reality according to his communist convictions is a requirement of his soul."

After extensive fine art training, Soviet artists were sent out into the countryside to portray the life of the common people. Therefore, workers and peasants abound in Socialist Realism art. Official Soviet painters believed in the ultimate good, both social and political, of the Communist cause. Their goal was to paint idealized pictures that would appeal to the masses and inspire strong belief in Communism.

Driven by narrative power, these works are characterized by vigorous brush work, dramatic attention to detail and a subtle yet rich palette. They are almost nostalgic in mood, particularly now with the dissolution of the U.S.S.R.

The exhibition will be accompanied by a 40-page, fully illustrated color catalogue. More information may be obtained by contacting William A. Karges Fine Art at 625-4266.

Silent auction to open photo exhibit

FIVE PHOTOGRAPHERS have joined forces to raise funds for Planned Parenthood with an exhibition entitled "A Woman's View," which will open with a silent auction from 4 to 6 p.m. Saturday at the Enyart Gallery, located in the Crossroads Shopping Center, Carmel.

The exhibition features photography from Martha Casanave, Kira Corser, Heidi McGurkin, Robin Rozenzweig and Alexis M. White. The photographs have the common theme of communicating women's experiences.

At the opening, the author of When I am an Old Woman, I Shall Wear Purple, a lighthearted book on aging, will present a reading. Papier-Mache Press, which publishes the book, will donate the profits from books and T-shirts it sells at the opening to Planned Parenthood. Music and refreshments will accompany the event.

More information may be obtained by contacting Enyart Gallery at 625-3718.

Reception for endangered species artist Rochelle Mason Saturday at PG museum

"CALIFORNIA ENDANGERED Species," an art exhibit intended to promote public awareness of endangered wildlife, will continue with a reception for artist Rochelle Mason at from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday at The Museum of Natural History, 165 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Mason will give a slide presentation about her subjects and will be signing copies of her newly-released bald eagle poster. Her work is included in the exhibit, which opened July 15 and runs through Sept. 7.

Mason, whose studio is in Foster City, California, is recognized as an artist with the unique ability to capture the personality of each animal she paints, perhaps influenced by her degree in Veterinary Technology from Purdue University. Her use of chalk pastels for her portrayals of animals such as the peregrine falcon, bald eagle, humpback whale and six species of butterflies is a technique which adds softness and warmth to the finished product.

Before arriving in Pacific Grove, Mason exhibited her work at the California state capitol, Point Reyes National Seashore, the San Diego Natural History Museum and Yosemite National Park.

For further information may be obtained by contacting Paul M. Finnegan, assistant curator at (408) 648-3116.

Looking For Help...

The SPCA of Monterey County is a private, local, non-profit organization that relies predominantly on donations for support. Contracts for sheltering animals from Monterey County and some municipalities account for only 25 percent of the SPCA's funding. Nor does the SPCA receive any financial support from a national humane society. Help support the SPCA's many services: adoptions, lost and found, spay/neuter clinics, cruelty investigations, humane education, wildlife rescue and rehabilitation, information, and referral. Call 373-2631, ext. 215 to find out how you can make a donation.

We make a donation to the SPCA the first time you use our service.

Two more weeks of golden travel

I SUPPOSE that if Bach were alive today he'd be considered a sorcerer of sorts.

Imagine a composer today, taking elements from rock'n'roll, country-western, musical comedy and classical music from the past 500 years (as Bach did with the music of his time) and building a monumental Mass to God. Would it work? Would he have all the problems that Bach had in his day with "authorities" who thought he wasn't good enough?

These are the thoughts that the brilliant lecture — The B Minor Mass: the Ultimate Religious Synthesis — given by British lecturer John Butt at Carpenter Hall brought to mind. Saying that Beethoven called the mass a "timeless masterpiece," Butt went on to explain that Bach had an amazing "historical awareness of all styles, dances, plain song, etc.; he sits like a great oracle for the future. He found the sacred in the secular, and with great variety, unity and cohesion, he took 'beautiful jewels' and placed them in a better setting."

And, lead tenor David Gordon, teaching at an Adams Vocal Master Class, added that the baroque music wants to "stir the passion in your heart." That is an understatement. The many hundreds of us ignorant folks (and many professionals) trudging back and forth from rehearsals, lectures and classes could feel the great Johann there, over all the concerts and lectures saying, "And — that's not all, folks."

Keats wrote, "Much have I traveled in the realms of gold." Ah, two more weeks of golden travel!

Carmel's newest bistro

Wednesday's Grand Opening of The Avenue, Carmel's newest dining establishment, would have given the local fire department fits.

The place was jammed with friends and relatives of its owners, Jack Hakim and Nedji Kashfi. And it is easy to see why. It's just plain lovely and the food is heavenly.

The proud owners beamed smiles and gave warm handshakes to guests in what was once Sade's Bar and Restaurant, situated in the courtyard of the Golden Bough. The place still has the "old Carmel look," with its thatched roof and Comstock-style design. Though it has gone through many changes, the fairy tale design and old-world charm remains.

Menu listings include such starters as Warm Goat Cheese Fritters, Roasted Corn and Crab Chowder, Rosemary Grilled Lamb Sirloin and Potato-Crusted Salmon Fillet. The restaurant is located on Ocean Avenue between Lincoln and Monte Verde. Lunch is served from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and dinner is served beginning at 5:30 p.m.

Abalone Club mixer

Carmel's Abalone Club held a mixer at the Windmill Rotisserie at the Barnyard in Carmel, Wednesday. Hosts Alexis Fafenrodt and Terri Tracy greeted many of the members whom you might see volunteering at the AT&T golf tournament and other peninsula functions.

Fafenrodt, a former practicing attorney, says that the business at the Windmill is more to his liking. He likes to cook and he relishes the "social atmosphere" of his business. He describes his menu as reasonable...from soups that start at $2.95 to a Sunday Brunch (from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.) at $7.95.

The Carmel Abalone Club consists of a group of individuals 21 years or older who have come together to have fun. Honorary members include Bud Allen, Virginia Burke, Gary Duffel, Clint Eastwood, Fred Farr, Jean Grace, Carmel Mayor Ken White and Jake Stock, to name a few. Membership in the club is $7.50 annually. For an application, write P.O. Box 149, Carmel, Calif. 93921.

SPCA Auxiliary celebrates 20th anniversary
Adam was allowed to name all the creatures of the earth — from the aardvark to the zebra. Monterey County zoologists will tell you that while those two fellows are not found here (especially the zebra, I haven't seen one, have you?), there are many hundreds of other animal species. And I can tell you about other animals...they who care for and love all of the animals — the marvelous, miraculous group of human beings called the SPCA Auxiliary, all of whom have donated $100,000 to the SPCA since its inception 20 years ago.

On Sunday, they partied in the garden of hosts Dr. Jim and Anna Rheim at Los Laureles Grade in Carmel Valley. And what a party! The vino was flowing, and the abundant salads, meats and delicious vegetables were only excelled by the beauty of the surroundings. I have never seen such huge old oaks, some of which had to be more than 100 feet in diameter. It was nice to see Dolores and Steve Gunia, and Audrey Schrader was all decked out in an adorable yellow cowboy outfit. Sharon Pelino, chairwoman of the event, was the most helpful hostess I have ever known.

Peter Dragula, a clown of astonishing talents, enacted great feats of prestidigitation. He balanced a unicycle on his head, got himself out of a strait jacket in five minutes and juggled for everyone at each table.

Some of the funny moments of each year's party were printed on a handout — "Remember When": Oak worms descended on all the guests at Virginia Stanton's home in Carmel Valley?... the belly dancer turned out to be male?... A guest brought his dog and the hostess' dog bit it?!

Have you seen a little dog's tail wag happily lately? If you haven't, then please call the SPCA Auxiliary and find out what you can do about it.

Mondavi 'Family of Wines' dinner

"Making good wine is a skill, fine wine an art."
— Robert Mondavi

Social Spotlight

Not everybody can have purple feet. But pretty soon a few people will have. At the historical wine lecture given before the Mondavi dinner at La Playa Sunday evening, Mondavi historian Nina Wemyss told us that Mondavi has planted some of the same variety of vines that Cortés brought to America in 1521, calling it "historical wine." She added that they plan to "stomp the grapes."

Saying that wine growing was established before the citrus industry in California, Wemyss told us that the first wines were made by the missionaries at San Juan Capistrano in 1782. They washed the Native Americans who lived there and had them press the grapes with their feet.

As we watched slide shows of old-time lithographs and drawings, we saw that Anaheim made all of the wines for the United States. Wines went for between 20 and 60 cents a gallon and were always served free with meals. The lecture was fascinating and filled with all kinds of data about how wines were dealt with during the prohibition era.

Winemaker Ken Brown of the Byron Winery in Santa Maria, owned by Mondavi, described the Byron wines as the California version of old-world French wines, "sparkling wines with creamy richness." Fermenting them in old French oak barrels was very expensive and done only as a hobby.

Diane Benedick of Mondavi, Napa Valley, described a Chardonnay wine of the early 1980s — which is only sold at the winery — as a "festive" wine.

Keith Moak of Mondavi's Vichon Winery in Napa Valley described his Cabernet Sauvignons as "complex wines of great balance and style."

Charming La Playa host Gary Bartram then led us into dinner, where we supped on Pear-Ginger Marinated Crilled Scallops, Smoked Pork Tenderloin, Baked Cherry Brie with Belgian Endive, Roasted Lamb Loin wrapped in Mushrooms and Napa Cabbage with Szechuan Peppercorn Sauce... and a Chef's dessert selection which was perfectly divine. Each course was accompanied with two wines and dessert was followed with an Opus One 1990 wine, which is no longer in stock.

As each of the guests at our table imbibed the delicious light reds, dark reds and white wines, tongues got looser and we all got friendlier, which is the way a good wine dinner should end.

Mondavi's Diane Benedick summed it up at the end of this elegant affair by quoting Benjamin Franklin: "Wine is God's gift to us because he wants us to be happy."

Starting Out

By DIAN HYMER

Should you make an offer on an overpriced listing?

THERE ARE several reasons why a listing might be overpriced for the market. The sellers may be using a new or out-of-area real estate agent who's unfamiliar with local values. In this case, the sellers may have been misinformed about the value of their home.

Sometimes sellers who purchased their home at a time when values were higher have difficulty accepting that the value of their property has dropped. Or, the property may be unique and difficult to price. Finally, the sellers may have bought another property before selling and they need to sell for a certain price in order to complete the purchase.

Don't rule out making an offer on a house you like just because it's overpriced. But, before you spend time trying to buy a house that's priced too high, do some investigation.

Ask your agent to find out why the house is priced high. Is it agent error, uncertainty about the price, or unreasonableness on the seller's part? If the sellers will only sell if they get a price that's too high for the market, don't waste your time.

Find out how long the property has been on the market. Have there been any offers? Try to find out what price, or prices, the sellers turned down and how long ago the offers were made. Have there been any price reductions? What is the sellers' motivation to sell? If they have bought another house on a noncontingent basis, or if they've accepted a transfer, they may need to sell regardless of the price they get.

In this case, it's usually only a matter of time before they soften and accept a realistic price. Likewise, a builder with surplus inventory may be willing to negotiate rather than incur the costs of holding onto the properties longer.

■ First-time tip: Trying to buy a house that's listed too high takes patience and determination. You may not get very far if you make a low offer on an overpriced listing that's new on the market. Sellers of overpriced listings usually have to test the market before they'll entertain a lower price.

But, after the house has been on the market awhile, make a realistic offer and arm yourself with as much ammunition as possible. Get yourself pre-approved for a loan so the seller knows you're qualified financially and can close quickly. Have your agent provide comparable sales information to justify your offer price.

Find out everything you can about the sellers' needs so that you can tailor your offer to accommodate them. For example, if they need a short close and an option to rent back after closing, propose this to make the offer as appealing as possible.

Be prepared for rejection. The sellers may respond unreasonably to a lower price. However, they may yield some ground after a few rounds of countering back and forth. If you reach a stalemate, drop the negotiations for awhile and make another offer a few weeks later if the house is still available and you haven't found another house you like better.

Given time to ponder a failed negotiation, sellers often become more willing to negotiate the second time around.

■ The closing: The key to making any negotiation work is to explore every option to try to find a common meeting ground. It usually takes more time and effort to buy a house that's listed too high.

But if you have the fortitude to stick it out, it's worth it. Plus you'll avoid the frustration of competing with multiple buyers.

TAKING IT TO TV

New half-hour real estate program poised for debut

PENINSULA SHOWCASE of Homes is the name of a new 30-minute television program that will make its debut in August on the Monterey Peninsula.

Sponsored by Realtor Rand K. Smith and hosted by public relations man Alan Richmond, the show will be seen 16 times a week on cable channel 2, where The Monterey Show is typically viewed.

The new program will feature video tours of properties for sale on the Monterey Peninsula, provide information on ways to buy, sell, improve and manage real estate property, and profile local industry executives.

"I want people to see just what today's real estate market is all about, and to learn how it works," Smith said.

The show is being produced by Earl Brown of Skystar Entertainment, whose company also produces a similar show in Santa Barbara.

"With the market looking so strong and picking up steam," Brown said, "Peninsula Showcase of Homes is going to be a very popular show."

RAND K. SMITH serves as sponsor of Peninsula Showcase of Homes, a new TV show debuting in August that is devoted to the Monterey Peninsula real estate industry.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice of Public Comment Period for the Remedial Action Plan for Building 110, Naval Facility Point Sur.

The U.S. Navy is requesting comments from the public on the Remedial Action Plan (RAP) for remediation of contamination at Building 110 at Naval Facility Point Sur. The proposed plan to remediate this contamination is to physically remove the contaminated material and 1/4-inch of the underlying concrete and dispose of the material at an approved hazardous waste landfill.

Building 100 housed a carpenter's shop and was used from about 1957 to 1982. The floor of the original carpenter's shop was made of spark-proof redwood blocks. The redwood blocks have been removed, and a layer of adhesive remains. Sampling of the adhesive material indicates it contains concentrations of polycyclic aromatic hydrocarbons (PAHs) (also known as polynuclear aromatic hydrocarbons (PNAs) that require remediation. The building is not currently used.

Three alternatives for remediation were evaluated: no action, applying a surface coating to reduce the potential for contact with the contaminated material, or physically removing the adhesive and 1/4 inch of the underlying concrete subfloor. The removal and disposal alternative has been selected for this site.

The public is invited to comment on the RAP. The RAP is available at the Harrison Memorial Library located at the corner of Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Avenue in Carmel, California, which is open between the house of 10:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, 10:00 a.m. to 6 p.m. Thursday and Friday, and 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. on Saturday. Written comments should be addressed to:

Mr. Todd Greene
Department of the Navy
Western Division
Naval Facilities Engineering Command
900 Commodore Drive
San Bruno, California, 94066

The public comment period extends from July 21, 1994, to August 21, 1994. All comments must be postmarked by August 21, 1994.

Publication dates: July 21, 1994. (PC708)

Cafe Berlin

Stroll past the herb garden (wheelchair accessible) and you'll find Cafe Berlin tucked away in a cozy courtyard. Delicious aromas lead you into the cheerful front room where you'll find casual dining with "Neuschwanstein" in the background. Or, venture further into the Ratskeller where you observe Chef/owner, Peter Stuber, creating his culinary delights in a cozy, comfortable atmosphere.

Berlin-born, Peter was raised in family-owned restaurants and has since learned the trade at many renowned establishments. From heart-friendly pastas and seafood to the traditional German foods such as Sauerbraten, Wiener Schnitzel and Rouladen, each item is prepared to order with the guest's preferences in mind. Add an extra dumpling, or cook without butter, no request is too much trouble. Regular diners don't even have to remind him — he knows.

Enjoy a wide variety of German beers and wines as well as some favorite California selections and save room for his "world-famous" apple strudel or Lisa's Black Forest cake. Complete your dining experience with a cappuccino or espresso and hugs are always welcomed.

The Clam Box has been a local Carmel favorite since 1961 and over the years, owners Dave and Diane Eagle have developed a very loyal following with this delightful seafood restaurant.

Best known for their daily fresh fish selection, the Clam Box menu has a variety of meal choices available including some excellent casseroles, light meals including crab, shrimp or combo louies, broiled fish and chicken, and fish and chips for the budget minded, though all the meals are extremely reasonably priced.

Consistent favorites are broiled halibut, swordfish, and salmon, and the fresh grilled filet of sole is also very popular. The house specialty would have to be the fresh salmon brevel with daily specials varying from mahi-mahi to orange roughy or catfish.

The Clam Box hours are:

Windmill Rotisserie is an exciting new restaurant addition to the Monterey Peninsula. It features fresh and flavorful products from the Monterey Bay and Salinas Valley areas, prepared in a traditional European country manner emphasizing fresh herbs with wine and stock reductions.

Windmill Rotisserie has something for everyone, with respect to both menu and ambiance. The menu features chicken, duck, baby back ribs, lamb, and the very popular herb-crusted ribeye beef roast, all prepared on the gas-fired rotisserie on display at the front of the restaurant. Other items include daily fresh fish, salads, and a variety of vegetarian and pasta dishes.

The wine list, carefully selected to complement the menu, focuses on a large selection from the fine wineries in the Monterey area. The reserve list offers an even wider selection from Alexis's extensive personal collection. In addition to the wine list, the Windmill Rotisserie has a full bar and features several microbrew beers.

Windmill has three different settings in which guests can enjoy their meals. There is the heated outdoor patio from which patrons can see the landmark windmill overhead and enjoy the world famous Barnyard flower gardens. There is the casual and lively "Rotisserie Room" with its view of the imported rotisserie and featuring a mural of a splendid vineyard setting. Locals in the know reserve the "Vineyard table" for the best view of the activity. For those who wish a little quieter dining experience, there is the "Windmill Room," featuring art works from a local gallery and a view of the outdoor patio. On sunny days, the doors between the patio and the Windmill Room are opened, allowing diners to more fully enjoy the wonderful Carmel outdoors.

In addition to its unique and delightful ambiance, Windmill Rotisserie adds to your dining pleasure by featuring live acoustic jazz several nights a week and offering a happy hour Thursday and Friday evenings from 5:00pm to 6:30pm. Windmill Rotisserie is located under the Windmill in the Barnyard, at the intersection of Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Road.

Windmill Rotisserie hours are:

Tuesday through Saturday

11:30am - 2:00pm Lunch

5:00pm - 9:00pm Dinner

Closed Monday

OLD ADOBE GRILL

com • pa • dre / kum' padre / n. [Spanish, godfather, fr. ML compater - more at Compere] chiefly Southwest; a close friend; Buddy. Technically, the godfather of your child. You and he are compadres...

A compadre is more than a friend. He is one's best amigo — someone to confide in. With your compadre you experience new adventures in life and relish the memories of adventures past. He is an adviser in the pleasures of living. Often like a godfather or a favorite uncle, he is one with whom you may experience things not possible with your father. To be a compadre is not just desirable, it is essential.

Compadres is more than a Mexican Restaurant and Cantina. It is a place to relax, and indulge the senses with good food, abundant drinks, good company, and friendly service. Ours is a place where everyone is a compadre, a place just to enjoy!

About the Adobe: Compadres occupies a site dating from the 1830s when Dr. James Stokes built the Adobe that subsequently housed California's first newspaper, The Californian, and Monterey's first bakery and pottery kiln. The historic location has figured prominently in Monterey's social scene, with the home itself providing an elegant and gracious setting for countless festive parties.

It was only a natural transition then for the location to be transformed into a restaurant, first by Gallatin's Powers in 1950 who created the nationally-famous, award-winning Gallatin's, and now Compadres — with our award-winning margaritas and critically-acclaimed western cooking with a Mexican accent!

WINE LIST

Greece is a land where the vintner's art is an essential part of the landscape and where appreciation of wine dates back to Dionysus, the god of wine. Nearly three thousand years ago, Greece was the leading wine producer of the ancient world. Wine was regarded as mystical, a drink of the gods, reserved only for "priestly prerogative." The wines of Greece are as varied and fascinating as its history and geography, and wine lovers can now enjoy the more unique and quality vintages available.

From Our Traditional Tandoor Clay Oven

(A 4,000 Year Tradition)

Tandoor is the name of a vat-shaped clay oven that is heated with mesquite wood, charcoal or even natural gas. The oven produces extremely high temperatures, sealing the succulent juices of various marinated meats, keeping them moist, tender and flavorful.

All meats are marinated with fresh herbs and spices in a "live" yogurt sauce and left to season overnight. Once seasoned, they are skewered and baked in the Tandoor with all fats being eliminated during the high temperature cooking process. This freshly-baked, mouth-watering delicacy is then served directly from the clay oven on hot sizzling platters to your table, along with a fresh salad with relishes and condiments ("chutneys").

Some of the main spices and seasonings that we do like to use in our food include cumin, coriander, turmeric, black pepper, mustard seeds, fennel seeds, cinnamon, cardamom and cloves. Sometimes we leave the spices whole and fry them, sometimes we roast the spices and at other times we grind them and mix them with water or vinegar to make a paste. Each of these techniques draws out a completely different flavour from the same spice. This way we give our cooking a great variety.

Monterey

Free Parking Available

*F*or over a quarter century, the Sardine Factory has set the standard for dining excellence on the Monterey Peninsula. Preserving the flavor of "the good old days" when Steinbeck roamed the Row, the restaurant offers several different dining experiences.

Enjoy the clubby warmth of the Cannery Row Room reminiscent of the rough-and-tumble history of the area. For romance and intimacy, choose the Captain's Room, softly lit by candlelight and the glow of a fireplace, watched over by portraits of the sea captains who once sailed the waters of Monterey Bay. For a light and airy atmosphere, step into the Conservatory; dining under the glass dome of this circular room, you'll be surrounded by lush gardens with the twinkle of stars overhead. A central fountain and decor reminiscent of the '20s completes the scene for a picture-perfect evening in the Conservatory.

Owners Ted Balestreri and Bert Cutino, along with their dedicated staff — many of whom have served Sardine Factory guests for over 20 years — pride themselves on impeccable service, a taste-tempting menu and one of the finest wine cellars in the world. Taste their signature abalone bisque, fresh Monterey Bay prawns or delectable rack of lamb, part of a diverse menu that combines the freshest regional ingredients with European flair and a dash of California style.

Follow in the footsteps of leading figures in entertainment, politics, sports and business and experience one of America's most renowned restaurants

Famiglia Spadaro

Family makes a meal special. The contribution, the sharing, and Spadaro's Restaurant is truly a family experience.

In 1970, Vito and Pat Spadaro christened Spadaro's Restaurant and, in the family tradition, the Spadaros have gone to great lengths to serve the finest authentic Italian food, succulent steaks and seafood fresh from the rich Monterey Bay — often caught by Vito himself. During the Salmon season, his daily catch is the pride of our delectable menu.

Fishing is a part of the Spadaro family tradition. Captain John Spadaro once fished the waters of Monterey Bay for its legendary sardines aboard the 89-foot Lina VII — a proud part of our heritage whose memory is celebrated in Spadaro's Restaurant dining room with photographs and a model of the Lina VII.

Exquisitely prepared food, a breathtaking view of the Bay, a historic ambiance and a proud sense of family. From our family to yours, Spadaro's Restaurant offers only the best. Because the best is important to you. It's the only thing to us.

We hope you enjoy it.

Our Special Thanks, The Spadaro Family.

It's wonderful what 250 years can do for Rack of Lamb Provençal.

When George Washington was just 5 years old, Pierre Bain's family had opened the Hotel Bain with a restaurant in Comps-sur-Artuby, in Provence, France. Today they still operate the same hotel and restaurant.

It is from this rich 250 year tradition that Pierre Bain brings his Fandango Restaurant to Pacific Grove.

"In the South of France, when I was young, we cooked with olives, tomatoes, fish - things that were indigenous. Later I went away from that food and learned a different type of cooking. I learned in fancy restaurants to prepare much richer food. Now, at Fandango, we serve the kind of food we liked in southern France - Rack of Lamb Provençal, Canneloni Niçoise, Paella, Mesquite Grilled Seafood... Those dishes are my roots; they are the cuisine of my mother and grandmothers."

- Pierre Baine

You can get fresh fish caught daily in local waters to take home and prepare yourself or you can sit down and let somebody else do the work at a new fish market and restaurant in Pacific Grove. Located in the Fairway Center Shopping Center on Forest at David, Favaloro's fish Market and Italian Seafood Restaurant is a "casual, family place you can go in your jeans" says Marie Favaloro, who owns the restaurant with her husband, Nino. The restaurant offers seafood, pastas, and other entrees such as veal and chicken prepared Italian style. A complete meal ranges in price from $8.95 - 14.50. Located at 1120 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove, Favaloro's is open Tuesday - Friday, and is closed on Monday.

Some of Nino and Marie's favorite dishes are the Linguine Con Frutto Di Mare (linguine with shrimp, scallops, clams, and calamari prepared in a tomato garlic cream sauce), and the best Combination Chioppino (1/2 crab, clams, prawns, scallops, and calamari steamed in tomato wine sauce). What a feast!

On the lighter side are the soups and salads, and Combo Louies (lunch), grilled fish meals, Eggplant Parmesan, Fettucine Al pesto, and Spaghetti Al Pomodoro E Basilico (spaghetti tossed in chopped fresh tomatoes, garlic, basil, and olive oil).

The Story of Pasta Mia In 1981, owner Maureen Signorella returned from a two year stay in Italy to open Pasta Mia, an authentic Italian trattoria. She located and completely refurbished this hundred year old Victorian house in Pacific Grove. In 1989 the building was modified with the addition of a larger kitchen and another dining room with fireplace. She recently completed the addition of the wine room to further enhance the delightful warm ambience of this Pacific Grove restaurant.

Pasta Mia's menu was created by Maureen from her travels and culinary experiences throughout Italy. It is unique in that it combines the delicate flavors of the Northern Italian cuisine with the fresh flair of the southern regions.

The family of Pasta Mia welcomes you.

Chef Tito Perez, Manager Dino Vinini
